

Two Incidents Occur In Dewey Campaign In Southern Illinois

Tomatoes, Rotten Eggs Hurlled From Crowd: Train Backs Into Crowd and Dewey Assails Engineer as Lunatic;
Articles Thrown by Children

En Route with Dewey to Oklahoma City, Oct. 13 (AP) — Southern Illinois gave Gov. Thomas E. Dewey a "Wallace welcome" of flying tomatoes and rotten eggs last night as he headed for Oklahoma with 14 speeches on his program.

Besides the flying groceries, Dewey was beset by a mishap at Beaucaup, Ill., where his special train backed up into a crowd of about 1,000 persons who had turned out to hear the nominee in an after dark speech.

"That's the first lunatic I've had for an engineer," the Republican presidential candidate commented.

"He probably should be shot at sunrise," Dewey added, "but we'll let him off this time since nobody was hurt."

Officials of the Louisville and Nashville railroad identified the chief engineer of the G.O.P. special as Lee Tindle of Evansville, Ind. Tindle and road officials made no comment.

Truman Directs Appeal to Dairy Country Residents

President Gives 4-Point Program in Illinois:
Will Speak at St. Paul

A second Truman campaign train, Oct. 13 (AP) — Presidential Truman directed his vote appeal to the Wisconsin and Minnesota dairy country today.

He headed for St. Paul and a major address at 10:30 p. m. Oct. 14 after a rousing reception in Kansas where he laid down a four-point farm program. In a talk to the farmers at Springfield, Ill., last night, Mr. Truman told a group estimated crowd of 6,000 that he would spend $500,000 to help the dairy farmer. He said that he would be in St. Paul, Minn., on Oct. 14 and that he would be in Minneapolis on Oct. 15.

Truman in the November election in Minnesota is concentrated on the campaign of Mayor Hubert H. Humphrey. Humphrey is the son of the late Senator Charles McNamara, who was defeated by Truman in 1944.

Senator Ball supported President Roosevelt in 1944 on the foreign policy issue. He has been under constant attack from labor organizations this year.

Mr. Truman's campaign train passed through Wisconsin on a route which called for a speech at Superior at 3:30 p. m. Oct. 14, but with the possibility of a series of earlier platform appearances enroute.

At Superior Mr. Truman was expected to appear on a near platform, crowd and cheer leader to lead Erickson Park in Duluth, Minn., for a speech at 4 p. m. (EST).

The Springfield speech, coming after Mr. Truman laid a wreath on the tomb of Abraham Lincoln, featured such assertions by the President as:

"I want we had at least as much American support for our agricultural policy as we have for our foreign policy."

"They (the Republicans) tell me that they favor farm price support. But while you sit out here on a powder keg waiting for prices to blow up, they let it blow."

He said the Republicans have "departed from the fundamental principles of Lincoln" and added: "The members of the Republican Party today would have been the bitter enemies of Lincoln in the time just as they are the enemies of his principles today."

Visited Cookie Jar

New York, N. Y., Oct. 13 (AP) — A 10-year-old Mildred Schmitt went to the cookie jar at her home at 100 West 10th St. and instead of cookies found $2,000 in cash, Capt. Charles Schmitt, chief of detectives, reported her in a written statement today.

Mr. Schmitt went to the same jar the next day, looking for the money, to get from his drapery business at 100 West 10th St. and found not even a crumb, Miss Schmitt said.

She said she had gone with "a couple of friends" to Boston September 22 and later had visited Buffalo, returning with $3,000.

Student Is Killed

Walled, N. Y., Oct. 13 (AP) — One Simpson College student was killed and four others were injured when an automobile in which they were riding skidded on a curve and overturned early today.

The accident occurred on Highway 22, near the town of Simpson, where a car driven by a student, Joseph H. Smith, 21, of Simpson, Iowa, was driving at 25 miles an hour when it skidded on a curve and overturned.

Approval Is Given U.S. in Industries

Britain and France Say
Suspension Removal
All Right; Revisions
May Be Made

Hoffman Confers

Bevin and U.S. Leader of E.R.P. Talk About Production

London, Oct. 13 (AP) — The United States apparently got British and French approval today for its plan to suspend removal of important German industrial plants, diplomats said.

The informants said both countries have agreed to halt the dismantling process pending a new review of the part Germany can play in European economic recovery. The plants were marked for removal.

France announced Foreign Minister Robert Schuman had recognized "that in certain cases" the "right to be revised to take into account the major advantage, or even the indispensability, of transferring certain machines."

British sources said Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin had agreed reluctantly to cut down the number of factories to be dismantled, with the final action to be dependent upon a new assessment of the situation in Germany. There was no official confirmation.

The French announcement came less than 24 hours after Paul Hoffman, U. S. administrator for the European Recovery Program, talked with Schuman about German industry. France previously had been the chief objector to any move to abandon plans to cut Germany's industrial potential.

British Commonwealth leaders considered steps needed to put their collective economy on a paying basis.

It was the second day which the Commonwealth prime ministers devoted themselves solely to economic affairs. The conference, first since the war's end, opened today.

Sir Stafford Cripps, British chancellor of the exchequer, arrived at 10 Downing street with a bundle of statistics on how British participation in the European Recovery Program will effect inter-empire trade relations.

Paul Hoffman, United States administrator of the E.R.P. program, went into a huddle here with Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin.

Diplomatic officials said they talked primarily about ways of increasing production in Germany's industry.

Hoffman has advocated a sharp curtailment in the program for dismantling German industries for shipment as reparations—a proposal which encountered objection from Britain and France.

He has suggested that Europe's recovery could be speeded by using some of the factories.

American sources said Hoffman probably would suggest a moratorium on the dismantling program to furnish time for a complete review of Germany's potential contribution to E.R.P.

Food Profiteers in High Price Battle

Public Prosecutors Receive Circular Reminding of Government's Determination

Paris, Oct. 13 (AP) — France opened war today on food speculators in an attempt to drive down high prices—strongest argument of Communist-led unions in fomenting the current strike wave.

Public prosecutors throughout the country received a circular from Justice Minister Andre Marie, reminding them of the government's determination to "prosecute profiteers without pity."

A 24-hour dockworkers walkout threatened to tie up most of the ports in the strike-harried nation today.

The tie-up follows the now familiar strike pattern which the government has blamed on the Cominform (Communist International Information Bureau) and the French Communist Party.

The strategy consists of short-lived strikes in key industries and commerce points.

The major strike still is the nation-wide coal mine tieup, now in its 11th day. The walkout already has cost the nation more than 1,000,000 tons of fuel and no end is in sight.

Government officials say the coal strike is the spearhead of the Cominform's drive to wreck the European Recovery Program in France.

The walkout originally was called as a protest against high prices and to demand increased wages.

The situation in the railroads remains confused.

In general rail stoppages eased somewhat. Many key centers voted to return to work, bringing freight travel back to 90 per cent of normal.

However, strike votes were being taken in at least seven key rail centers and many are expected to be hit by stoppages. Diesel rail workers have voted to strike until Saturday.

Center Is in Operation

The Kingston canning center is still in operation, although it is still in the season. It is being extensively used for making apple sauce and grape juice. A considerable amount of pears, tomatoes, tomato juice, beets and carrots are also being canned. The canning center will remain open this fall as long as there is sufficient demand for its use. Appointments may be made by calling the center, 5637-J, or the home of the instructors 1988-W or 2666.

To Get Operation

Chicago, Oct. 13 (AP) — Two-year-old Pamela Lamphere tomorrow will undergo the second of three operations to correct a rare bladder malformation. Pamela was born with her bladder outside her body and the question of whether to resort to surgery caused a rift between her parents. They later became reconciled and the series of operations was begun. Dr. Karl A. Meyer, county hospital pediatric director, estimated Pamela will be able to leave the hospital two weeks after the second operation. She will wait at home until surgeons are ready to perform the final operation, probably in about three months.

Gas Fire Quenched

Firemen checked a slight fire in a gas pump on the E. T. McGill yard property off central Broadway this morning. The blaze was reported due to a short circuit and was quenched by a chemical unit. The call was at 6:15 a. m.

Considered One of Chief Automobile Men in State; Came to Kingston in 1914; Was Active in Various Local Civic Affairs

Roy M. Sutliff, 56, president and treasurer of Colonial City Chevrolet, Inc., of Kingston, and one of the leading automobile men of the state, died last evening at Harkness Pavilion, New York, where he had recently undergone a serious operation.

Widely known throughout the automobile world, Sutliff had been associated with the automobile business practically all his life and since taking up his residence in Kingston, about 1914, he had been identified with many local enterprises and took a very active part in all civic movements.

Born at Benton, Penn., he became interested as a young man in the automobile industry which was then becoming one of the nation's great enterprises. In Kingston he worked as a car salesman and as sales manager until he engaged in business for himself shortly after the close of World War I. During his residence here he made a wide circle of friends and came to be one of the leading citizens of the city.

Besides his wife, Frances Baxter Sutliff, he is survived by his mother, Mrs. Bruce Sutliff; three brothers, Doyle R., Claude and Clyde Sutliff, all of Benton, Penn. Sutliff was a member of Millford Lodge, No. 344, F. & A. M., of Benton, Penn., and he was a member of the Automobile Old Timer Club.

Funeral services will be held from the residence 61 Lounsbury Place, Kingston, Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Burial will be in Montrose Cemetery. Friends may call at the residence on Thursday and Friday evening.

Managed Local Agency

Sutliff came to Kingston from Benton, Pa., to become manager of the Forsyth & Davis Motor Car Company, Inc., the pioneer automobile agency in Kingston, and he remained with that company selling Franklin and Chevrolet cars until 1921 when he entered the automobile sales business and organized Sutliff, Inc., which took over the Packard car agency in this area. At that time the large showroom and shop at Albany avenue and Maiden Lane was erected. The building was one of the most modern automobile showrooms and shops outside greater New York city. Later the business expanded to such an extent that the shops were moved to the present O'Neil street location and the building at Albany avenue and Maiden Lane was devoted to sale of cars.

After selling Packard cars for a time the franchise for Chevrolet cars was secured and Colonial City Chevrolet, Inc., was organized. Mr. Sutliff served as vice-president of the corporation and later as president and treasurer.

Always interested in the welfare of the automotive industry, Mr. Sutliff was instrumental in organizing the Ulster County Automotive Association, a county wide organization of car dealers. This association also sponsored annual automobile shows in Ulster county for several years immediately following World War I. He served that organization as its president for several years. It was in that promotion of the Kingston Automobile Show that Mr. Sutliff developed one of the most successful publicity stunts which has ever been carried out locally. To publicize the show he had Rip Van Winkle and his hound mysteriously appear in Ulster county villages and later it was announced that Rip Van Winkle was en route to the Kingston Automobile Show where he would make a personal appearance. Sforza Says Bases Could Be Had, if Italy Got Colonies

Italian Neutrality Foolish,
He Tells Nenni in
Chamber of Deputies Session

Rome, Oct. 13 (AP) — Foreign Minister Carlo Sforza suggested today that if Italy got back her African colonies she would be ready to cede strategic bases to the great powers.

He was answering questions by Pietro Nenni, pro-Communist Socialist and former foreign minister, in the foreign affairs committee of the Chamber of Deputies.

Sforza said that for Italy to adopt a neutral position in the present world crisis would be like an ostrich burying its head in the sand.

Nenni expressed fear that the government, in bargaining for return of the African territories Italy held before the war, is "implicitly orienting the country toward belligerence."

Sforza said:

"Italy, in the event of her return to Africa as a mandate power, is ready to take account of the strategic necessities of the great powers."

Sforza said he is certain "peace will be preserved—or, to be more exact, because there is no peace—the state of war will not continue."

He said Italy has made no secret pact and will make none. Italy's Communist boss, Palmiro Togliatti, hinted yesterday that a revolt could break out in Italy at any time.

He demanded "a new minister of the interior and a new government based on the laboring mass."

Togliatti told the Chamber of Deputies yesterday another July 14 "can come at any moment."

July 14 was the day he was wounded by a would-be assassin, an act which touched off a general strike the government described as revolutionary in character.

One Word, 'Stop' Could End Unrest in Nations Trying to Build Their Economies

Answer Awaited

Six 'Neutrals' Expect
Kremlin's Reply to Proposals

Paris, Oct. 13 (AP) — Britain charged today Russia's fifth column is sabotaging world reconstruction through Communist parties in every country in the world.

Sir Hartley Shawcross, addressing the 58-nation political committee of the United Nations, declared Russia's offer to lay her cards on the table if a Soviet armaments proposal was adopted "won't do."

Resuming the debate on Russia's proposal for a one-third reduction in armaments within a year, Sir Hartley said Russia's Andrei Y. Vishinsky was trying to do away with the iron curtain by denying it existed.

"What a tremendous contribution it would be to confidence in Europe if the Soviet countries would open their doors, lift the curtains and let travelers from other countries get to know and make friends with the warm-hearted and generous people of Russia and to understand the great problems they have to face," Sir Hartley said.

"One word from Russia: one little word—'stop'—would enable these troubled countries to put their own houses in order and to build themselves up in democratic peace and security—one little word—and it does not come."

Would Halt Sabotage

This word, he said, would halt Communist sabotage of reconstruction and Communist attempts to create instability and chaos.

He said Russia is trying to win "the fruits of war" without fighting. He said the Soviets must not expect Britain to adopt a policy of appeasement in an effort to reach agreement on control of atomic energy and reduction of armaments.

An Argentine delegate, said Russia is expected to reply today to small power efforts toward ending the Berlin blockade.

The Kremlin's answer to compromise proposals by the six indirectly affected nations of the Security Council is to be delivered to Argentine Foreign Minister Juan A. Bramuglia. The Argentine source said a promise rested on the Russian answer. The three astounded powers have refused to bargain with Russia while the blockade remains.

Approval was expected soon by British, French and American delegates of a joint resolution calling for firm Security Council action to halt the blockade.

The six neutrals Bramuglia led in the mediation efforts—Argentina, Belgium, Canada, China, Colombia and Syria—may meet to decide whether to continue these efforts. Delegates of the western powers have said privately they are convinced the mediation attempts will fail.

Have Been Reticent

Western officials have been reticent about the resolution they have been drafting for the Security Council. It seemed likely the resolution would ask the council to call for the Soviet blockade of Berlin imperils peace; that the blockade should be lifted to enable a meeting of the Big Four Foreign Ministers Council on Berlin and all-Germany problems; and that failure to lift the blockade is equivalent to duress, justifying a western refusal to negotiate.

Official sources said the resolution would not slam the door on a future settlement.

The Palestine situation is next on the agenda of the Political Committee, and Arab and Jewish lobbying is being intensified in anticipation of a debate on the report of Count Folke Bernadotte, the assassinated U.N. mediator.

Predictions from both sides are that both Arabs and Jews will reject the Bernadotte report—the Arabs because they say it implies formal recognition of Israel; the Jews because it would take the Negev desert area from them.

Warren R. Austin will call a meeting of the Security Council to discuss the Palestine truce "at the earliest possible moment," authoritative sources said today.

The U. S. delegate, the council's president for October, is consulting with United Nations officials over timing of such a meeting.

Challenges Russians

Shawcross challenged the Russians to:

1. Let newspapermen and diplomats to visit the Soviet Union.

Charles White Travels 4,000 Miles by Cycle For 'Average' of Opinion on Foreign Affairs

CHARLES CORWIN WHITE

Charles Corwin White, news analyst and lecturer, who has pedaled across the nation for "an average" in American public opinion on foreign affairs, arrived in this city yesterday afternoon with only a few miles left of his 4,000-mile bicycle tour.

The journey, dedicated to Americanism and a belief in the people's opinions, began in Los Angeles June 30, and will end soon in New York.

A former manager of the Manager Hotel Chain in New York, White is making the tour by bicycle, he said, as a better means of meeting the people and obtaining their views. He had pedaled more than 3,000 miles in 1947 for opinions of Americans as to the nation's entry into war.

This time he is conducting the one-man poll to "demonstrate the soundness of average opinion," and he is lecturing to tell the story of his findings.

White contends that the people should play a larger part in the nation's foreign affairs, but instead opinions are formed largely by the country's leaders.

This trend, together with that of closed-door sessions on foreign affairs, he held, are "twin dangers" in the building of foreign-affairs policy, and an example of this, he said, was the recent Marshall-Forester conference.

Through this practice, he said, foreign policy is apt to be built or continued on Page Two

Kingston Woman Is Pulled From Hudson at New York

New York, Oct. 13 (Special) — Miss Marian Jeannette Dunham, 27 of 1521 1/2 St. James street, Kingston, was rescued from the Hudson river at 5:30 o'clock this morning after falling from a Manhattan-Weehawken ferryboat, police said.

According to the report, Miss Dunham, who was in the company of Harry Rice, 32, of 6302 Pole street, West New York, N. J., fell from the dark upper deck of the Ferry Utica in midstream and was in the water between 15 and 20 minutes before she was rescued by Stark Aa, a crewman of the New York Central Railroad tug.

The rescue tug came to the scene after hearing the distress signal of the Utica. The boat's skipper, Tom Marshall, gave the man-overboard signal on the boat's whistle. Captain Alb McKinzie of the tug, upon reaching the scene, played a searchlight on the dark river and spotted Miss Dunham.

After being taken to the Jersey shore, Miss Dunham told police that she was on the way to the ladies' room when she felt sick. She added that she walked to the rail of the boat, lost her balance and fell overboard.

She was treated for submersion in the North Hudson Hospital, Weehawken.

Plane Identified As Flying 'Lab'

New York, Oct. 13 (AP)—The two-engine flying plane which has been zooming over the metropolitan area the past few days was identified yesterday as a flying laboratory.

Officials of the Curtiss-Wright Corporation said the plane was constructed from a B-17 Flying Fortress.

They said the craft is being used for high-altitude tests of the new T-35 typhoon turbo-prop engine being designed for future air force long-range bombers.

The B-17 was turbine engine driven, a huge, four-bladed electric propeller on the nose of the B-17. The propeller cannot be started until the plane is off the ground. The new engine is mounted in the nose section formerly occupied by the bombardier.

The company said it is testing the craft under actual flying conditions at altitudes above 30,000 feet, but both company and air force officials declined to discuss in detail the performance of the new engine.

Two Bicycles Found
Donald Selick, of 545 Abel street, reported to the police yesterday afternoon that he had found two bicycles in the Bronx. One was near his home, 545 Abel street, and the other was near the Y.M.C.A. building, 100 West 125th street.

The bicycles were found on Tuesday night. Officers of the Y.M.C.A. building reported that they had found a bicycle of "old vintage" near the stone crusher on West 125th street. All the bicycles were taken to headquarters pending appearance there of their owners.

Letter Carriers Vote Down Racial Issue
Miami, Fla., Oct. 13 (AP)—The National Association of Letter Carriers continued its 36th biennial convention here today after beating down an attempt to eliminate segregation within its ranks.

An effort by the New York delegation to change the association's constitution to eliminate separate branches for white and Negro workers was defeated during a business session yesterday. Separate branches for Negroes and white persons have been in effect since 1943.

The racial issue is due for another airing if a pending resolution would provide for no future conventions in cities where segregation laws are in effect.

The resolution reportedly has the backing of 11 northern delegations, but the resolutions committee is against it and the membership almost always follows the committee's recommendations.

The convention, which ends Saturday, also voted to increase officers' salaries and to raise the annual dues from $4 to $5.

White said he has found in his trip so far that the public appears to be "vastly distributed because they do not know what is going on. They feel rather futile about it, and they ask, 'what can we do about it?'"

The individual voice, he stressed, unless it is one well known, is a "voice crying in the wilderness."

The analyst will study his findings on the tour and prepare his report on average opinion soon after he arrives in New York. Copies of this will be sent to President Truman and his cabinet and to governors of the various states.

White's present address is given as Pasadena, Calif. Born in New Jersey, he is a graduate of Pawling School, Pawling, N. Y., and Yale University. During his business career, he also has been co-owner and managing-director of Hotel Woodstock, New York, and was secretary of the Hotels of Times Square. His business card lists him also as a "specialist in current history."

The trip from Kingston yesterday was from Catskill, and before that he had been in Albany. He was scheduled to make a radio address here and his next scheduled stop was Peekskill.

The trip was made on a specially built four-speed English bicycle, and White said he had made trips of from 50 to 150 miles a day.

Rochford Releases Committee Names
Edmund P. Rochford, county chairman, has announced his steering committee for the 1948 Christmas Seal Sale. Serving are: Miss Alice M. Scardfield, Vernon A. Barnhart, Claude Middagh, Fred Hoffman, Augustus P. Modjeska, C. D. Raymond and Ira V. Warren. This committee has accepted an assignment of great importance and responsibility, Rochford said.

Explaining that the county campaign is part of the 42nd annual Christmas Seal Sale to be conducted throughout the nation from Nov. 22 to Dec. 25, Rochford said that proceeds of the seal sale in Ulster county will support various activities of the association's tuberculosis control program. Among these are the many disease prevention and health projects—such as assistance in community organization, publicity and promotion of the chest X-ray surveys, financing X-rays for senior students and personnel in the county high schools and certain resident students of State Teachers College in New Paltz, transportation of patients to chest clinics, the school health institute and adult health education with meetings, movies, distribution of literature in tuberculosis and venereal disease control and other health subjects.

Community benefits to be derived from a successful appeal were stressed by Rochford, who added: "Last year, our death rate from tuberculosis in Ulster county was about 30 per 100,000. Tuberculosis causes more deaths between the ages of 15 and 45 than any other disease. We must bring this figure down. To do this, everyone in the community must support the tuberculosis control program being carried on here. A successful seal sale this year will mean that the association can expand its services which are designed to protect each one of us from tuberculosis. For this reason, the 1948 Christmas Seal Sale must be the best we have ever had."

FRIGHTENED GENERALS
The most frightened men in Europe before and during the war were the German generals. This appears from "The German Generals Talk", a volume of interviews with the captured German leaders, written by the British military critic, Basil M. Liddell Hart. Such fear seems strange for veteran soldiers, and still more so for generals, who are supposed to set an example. The explanation is that the German military men had the bad luck to be working for Hitler.

Even the highest German commanders were in mortal terror of Hitler. They did not venture to run counter to his slightest whim, no matter how preposterous they thought it. During the latter days of the war their task was made harder because Hitler would not sanction the slightest withdrawal of an army unit, even if that meant great strategic gains. Therefore German divisions were battered to pieces where they stood when a withdrawal might have saved them. If Hitler forbade a withdrawal, the generals were afraid to disobey.

Why did they not try to overthrow him? Some did, and were caught and hanged. Others refrained because the troops, representing the mass of the German people, believed implicitly in Hitler to the last. They would not have supported any revolt. So the generals continued to follow orders which they knew would lead to destruction. Most people would be frightened if their lives and those of their families were at the mercy of a homicidal maniac.

STUDYING THE ATOM
Speaking at the dedication of a new nuclear physics laboratory at Cornell University, and referring to the kind of research which led to the development of the atomic bomb, Professor I. I. Rabi posed the question: "Is it good for mankind to continue this kind of scientific work?" This is like a parachute jumper, having stepped out of a plane at 10,000 feet, asking "Is this a good idea?" Professor Rabi, appreciating this, raised the question not on his own account but as one which he said seems to be occurring to laymen. He went on to say: "We, in common with the rest of humanity, are embarked on an adventure from which there is no turning back. We always have to learn more in order to get along with what we have."

Perhaps the scientists, who devised the atomic bomb, may help to overcome the evil aspects of their creation by finding useful things for atomic energy to do. But mostly we need to learn not so much how to get along with the split atom as how to get along with each other. Scientific advancement does not create problems of human relations, but often it makes them much more pollicable, and more dangerous.

NO AGE-LIMIT
There are many arguments for and against arbitrary retirement for older men. During the depression years such a step was forced on many in the age bracket beginning at 40.

With labor and market conditions as they are at present, there is increasing realization that decisions must be backed up by experience and mature judgment, and a wider field is open for the older man. With this fact in mind, Men Over Forty clubs have been founded in fifteen American cities for the purpose of placing older men who have occupied administrative and executive positions. C. A. Swanson, president of the Chicago club, says that members are often given first chance when a position is open, and that the demand for qualified men exceeds the supply.

Youth has many advantages, including vigor and enthusiasm, but there is always a need for sober older heads to apply controls to vigorous action and to guide the enthusiasm of confidence. Nothing is more needed in today's confusion than the wise judgment which is based on long experience.

VETERANS AND THE WAR
Former service people are beginning to read about the war, librarians report. For a long time it was impossible to sell them any literature on the life they had left. Now they are beginning to draw books on this or that campaign in which they had a part. This is a reassuring sign. It means that the boredom and horror of military life have begun to wear off, that the veterans are settling down to normal life, and that their careers in the armed services will assume their proper proportion as years of which they may be proud until the end of their days.

'These Days'

THE SUPREME COURT
Among American officials, only the judges of the federal courts are chosen for life. Even limitations set during the New Deal concerning old age and disabilities in no manner affect the intent of the authors of our political system that judges should be aloof from the fortunes of politics or the pressures of the moment. This must be particularly true of justices of the Supreme Court of the United States, whose judgments possess a quality of finality upon which the life, happiness and property of each individual in the country are dependent.

The Court possesses no power to enforce its decisions. And yet, since the capacity, the ability of the Supreme Court to enforce its decisions, the decisions of the Court are enforced by general acceptance. No one questions the authority of the Court; no other court, federal or state, sets itself above the Supreme Court because it possesses neither an army nor a police force to insist upon its authority.

The justices of the Supreme Court must therefore be respected above all other men. Certainly, since the days of John Marshall, the respect for the Chief Justice of the United States has grown among the American people.

President Roosevelt sent Justice Owen J. Roberts to investigate the Pearl Harbor failure. That was an unfortunate appointment because Mr. Roberts, a man of the highest ability, was immediately involved in a controversy as to whether he deserved the American people in favor of Roosevelt. That controversy has continued to this day, in spite of the fact that Mr. Roberts has resigned from the Court and now heads the law school of the University of Pennsylvania.

Also, Justice Robert Jackson was appointed to manage the Nuremberg trials. That too led to serious controversy. It was an unfortunate appointment, because Mr. Jackson is one of the better justices of the Supreme Court.

Now arises the question of President Truman involving Chief Justice Vinson in a political mission to Stalin to deal with the Berlin situation. The conduct of Foreign Affairs is the function of the Secretary of State. The Chief Justice of the United States has nothing to do with it. Apart from that, the Berlin situation is one of great controversy. It has already been submitted to the United Nations after prolonged negotiations among Four Powers which ended in failure.

There is no reason for assuming that Chief Justice Vinson has the preparation, the experience, the training or knowledge to justify the belief that he can deal with the Berlin problem more competently than anyone who has up to now, been dealing with it. Certainly, he is not more prepared for the task than General Lucius Clay or Dr. Philip Jessup. He does not speak Russian; Stalin speaks no English. He is an authority neither on Russian nor German affairs.

The only object for sending the Chief Justice of the United States to Stalin could be that the President cannot go himself and has lost confidence in George Marshall, the Secretary of State. But the only reason that the President can have for wanting to see Stalin or to send a special representative to him—such an important one—is either to issue an ultimatum, or to appease Stalin. In a word, the purpose can only be to bring the situation to a head before Election Day, at no matter what cost.

The Berlin negotiations were undoubtedly important in the President's campaign calculations. They were to produce some kind of climax. On the other hand, suppose that Mr. Vinson's participation in this highly difficult and touchy question led to national disaster—what would that do to the Supreme Court of the United States? How low would the Court sink in public estimation? It is the Supreme Court, not Mr. Truman's personal fortunes, that matters.

For some reason, Mr. Truman does not grasp the essentials of our form of government. Just as he denounces Congress until his words have ceased to be political but have become an attack on the institution of Congress, so his relations with the Supreme Court fail to maintain the aloofness, the non-political character of that institution. It is a pity that Chief Justice Vinson permitted his name to be mentioned in this connection.

EMERGENCY MEDICAL SERVICE
When a member of the household suddenly becomes ill, the family physician is called by telephone and, if not in or soon available, the family naturally becomes alarmed. After telephoning nearby physicians or hospitals and finding no physician available, they may become frantic.

It readily can be understood why the family wonder what all the physicians are doing at this particular time. Sometimes it is after midnight, and yet for some reason the physician is unable to come. It is because physicians feel it their duty to attend a call, if at all possible, and realize how greatly upset both the patient and family become if they can't get a doctor within a few minutes. That is why the emergency medical service of the Academy of Medicine always asks for the name of the family physician and whether or not he had been called. A total of 77 physicians took care of the 300 calls. In 71 per cent of 214 calls, the first physician reached by the telephone operator agreed to make the call.

The physician sometimes was called at night to a dark neighborhood where the police or the family may have called a doctor who was there. While there the physician was in circumstances where a physician must be obtained immediately, generally spending the family physician always should be called first.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

Washington — Chief Justice Fred B. Vinson is not going to Moscow and his name, therefore, will not become a by-word with the Russian people. Down in Virginia, however, his name is so well known that it caused a Virginia traffic cop to rub his eyes.

Among the students at Washington and Lee University happen to be the grandson of a late famous Virginia senator, the great grandson of a famed Civil War hero, and the son of a chief justice. All three were riding together near Lexington, Va., when arrested for speeding.

The policeman, proceeding to book them, asked their names. "Robert E. Lee IV," replied the first student. It happened that he was telling the truth. The traffic cop looked up quizzically, but wrote the name down, then asked for the next name.

"Carter Class III," was the reply. The cop wrote the name down, then queried the third student. "What's yours?" "Fred M. Vinson, Jr.," replied young Vinson. "Then my name's Napoleon," exclaimed the flustered cop, and let all three boys go.

Note—Mrs. Vinson, wife of the chief justice, suggested to her son that after graduating at Washington and Lee he might want to take his law degree at Yale. A Yale degree, she intimated, might give him a better springboard to the legal fraternity. Replied her son: "Little old Center College (Kentucky) was good enough for dad, wasn't it?"

"Kickback" Parnell Thomas
Most readers of this column, judging by the mail, heartily disapprove of Congressman J. Parnell Thomas' system of salary kickbacks from clerks and stenographers. However, one or two readers have asked why I singled out Chairman Thomas.

The answer is that Thomas was this column has exposed kickbacks and nepotism among congressmen wherever they existed and regardless of political party. Thomas got no worse treatment than the others. It merely happens that his record seems to be worse than the others.

The first Congressman this column exposed for salary kick-backs was Rep. Richard Kleberg of Texas, of the famed King Ranch, largest cattle ranch in the world. Kleberg was a Democrat. The people of Texas promptly rose up and removed him from office.

Another Congressman exposed for kickbacks was Rep. Ed Rowe of Akron, Ohio, Republican, who required his secretary, Miss Margaret Nelson, to kick back around $112 a month out of her $212 salary to pay certain of Rowe's expenses. The voters of Ohio promptly saw to it that Rowe did not go back to Washington.

Contrary to some people's opinion, most Congressmen have clean, honest records when it comes to kickbacks. Only a small minority practice it. The salaries received by their clerks and stenographers are paid by the U. S. Government, not by the Congressmen, and the clerks and stenographers are entitled to the full amount. Most of them earn it.

Other members of the Un-American Activities Committee have clean records when it comes to kickbacks and nepotism. And their Chairman is hurting the cause for which the Committee was established—good Americanism—by scooping to illegal and unethical practices.

Taxpayers' Money Goes Up in Smoke
The brass hats have kept it hushed up, but the Air Force wasted thousands of dollars taking worthless movies of the Bikini atomic-bomb tests. For some unexplained reason, the job was turned over to inexperienced officers who fanned themselves movie-makers.

Brig. Gen. Paul Cullen, then a colonel, had charge of the Air Force camera crews at Bikini. His masterpiece was a glorified technical training film called "Able Baker Day," which he sent over to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer to be edited. But even after the Hollywood experts added their touches, the picture was such a flop and so hostile to the Army and Navy that it couldn't be shown.

Instead the top brass ordered all the extra prints burned, and only two copies kept for the files. Since Cullen had gone absent and ordered 48 prints, this made an expensive bonfire—paid for out of the taxpayers' pocket. Cost of the film alone that went up in smoke: $86,000.

Since the Atomic Energy Commission had called upon all the armed services to cooperate in filming the Bikini explosions, the navy was working on a similar picture at the same time Cullen was making "Able Baker Day." But Cullen was in such a hurry to finish the air force picture first and scoop the navy that he sent an air force technical adviser under the pretense of helping the navy, though with secret instructions to obstruct and delay the navy picture.

The air force also made another $50,000 technicolor extravaganza of Bikini, called "Phantom Wings." This smelled so that it also was never shown again after the preview. It was produced by Maj. James L. Gaylord, whose total photographic background, up to that time, had been as a personnel officer.

And here is how the air force has rewarded the two officers who wasted so much of the taxpayers' money: Cullen was promoted from colonel to brigadier general, and Gaylord—in spite of his first flop—was placed in charge of filming the recent super-secret tests at Eniwetok for the Atomic Energy Commission. He was supposed to have finished 23 films by October 1, so far, has delivered only five.

Note—The Air Inspector General is now investigating these cases.

Washington's Efforts to Forget All About Truman-Vinson Fiasco Are Unavailing—Reds May Get Tougher in Berlin
By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Oct. 13 — Official Washington has been trying to forget the Truman-Vinson fiasco, but it can't be done. In the Department of State and elsewhere the nervousness over what may happen in the next three weeks before election grows as the international situation becomes more complicated.

What has developed as a source of worry is not that President Truman may step off the deep end again with a fantastic plan to get attention in his political campaign but that Soviet Russia may take the recent episode as encouragement to adopt an even more extreme attitude in Berlin.

The tragedy of the Vinson affair is that the chief justice of the United States was an innocent party to a political stunt. The idea of sending the chief justice and taking it up with him and the radio networks before the matter had been fully arranged with the secretary of state indicates looseness in administration which the public will charge merely to Mr. Truman's ineptitude. But the Soviets will not be so charitable.

The Russians now are looking at the American position to determine how far it can be strained without going to war. The United Nations has before it the Berlin blockade, the moment when Mr. Vishinsky was being told that the situation had reached a grave point and that Russia must lift the blockade if there were to be four-power negotiations, a rift occurs behind the American front. If it was not a rift, it was surely a sign of weakness—of readiness to cut behind the stern attitude being taken by the major powers of the western group at Paris.

The Russians are well aware that the United States is in a state of governmental disunity no matter how much each candidate may profess his belief in the bipartisan foreign policy. The disunity comes about from the virtual certainty that Mr. Truman will be replaced by another president in January and because, under the American system, there is no way to bring immediately into power the new administration.

The "interregnum"—the period between election day, November 2nd, and January 20th next, when a new president is inaugurated—is a difficult one, but the constitution provides for it in order to give the incoming president time to select his cabinet and adjust himself to the requirements of his new post. In parliamentary systems the new administration can take office overnight, and it does so in both the executive and legislative branches of government.

The last "interregnum" that caused severe damage was that between election day in November of 1932 and the inauguration of F.D.R. on March 4, 1933. Rumors of what Mr. Roosevelt planned to do about devaluation of gold and other economic measures helped to bring on the crisis that closed all the banks on the day before the inauguration.

Certainly there is at present no effective system of transition under the American constitution, especially in time of international crisis. Some day, when streamlining of government is undertaken on a comprehensive basis, provision might be made for the appointment of new cabinet officers to take office immediately after the election.

If, for instance, Mr. Truman, after election day, would appoint a secretary of state, the man Governor Dewey may have in mind for that office, the country would be assured of continuity. It would be a formalizing of the present informal arrangement where Secretary Marshall keeps in touch with Governor Dewey through John Foster Dulles.

It will be recalled that Mr. Hoover tried to get Mr. Roosevelt to cooperate in the "interregnum" after November 1932, but Mr. Roosevelt shied away and scorned Mr. Hoover's offer of cooperation. It was only the patriotic work of the men in office who stayed on for a few weeks during the Roosevelt administration which prevented a worse debacle than that which occurred.

As the time for election and inauguration approaches, the matter of a working arrangement between the outgoing and incoming administrations will become of increasing importance.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Washington, Oct. 12—The sudden zeal of the Department of Justice to impugn Congressman Parnell Thomas, the chairman of the Committee on Un-American Activities, with an insinuating announcement that he is being "investigated" brings from our Bolsheviks no such wall as they raise when anyone from Harvard law is charged with questionable association. Being neither a Frankfurter plant in the State Department nor a Hollywood hack too proud to deny allegedly treasonous intentions, Mr. Thomas is not one of those sensitive cases calling for extraordinary nobility and restraint.

The Department of Justice has grown more and more reminiscent of the Harding regime, and we sniff a nostalgic recollection of the ethics of that stout crew of patriots, the Ohio gang. The same evidence, Rossbach, which it around so badly that even a first-class jury would have had to acquit. When it was all over and Fay, of course, had been acquitted, as it was a foregone conclusion that he would be when I talked to Clark, Mr. Clark indignantly cried that he thought the "quitter" had been a damned outrage. That was a conservative estimate.

There were commotions as of an "investigation," but it came to nothing until last spring. Then, finally, Rossbach, having been left in office notwithstanding all past performances, was charged with trying to bribe another federal judge.

Questions—Answers
Q—Who was the first actor to receive curtain applause in the United States?
A—Edmund Keene, who appeared in a group of special performances in Boston in 1821.

Q—When were pension laws for the aged introduced in this country?
A—Pension laws for the aged were enacted in March, 1923, by Montana and Nevada, whose respective governors signed their pension measures the same hour on the same day. Montana, however, had the first state-wide mandatory system.

Q—Was Tom Thumb a real person?
A—The real name of Tom Thumb, perhaps the most famous midget who has ever lived, was Charles Sherwood Stratton. Stratton was a true midget, not a dwarf. He was born at Bridgeport, Conn., in 1838.

Q—Where was Sir Walter Raleigh buried?
A—His body was buried in St. Margaret's Church, London. The head was embalmed and kept in a leather bag by his widow as long as she lived. What became of it after it was inherited by her son is not known.

Q—Of what kind of wood are skis made?
A—"The favorite materials used in ski-making are hickory, ash, oak, beech, birch or spruce, all of which have the qualities of toughness, flexibility and hardness.

Lions Will Plant Tree as UN Symbol

A proposal by Capt. Andrew S. Hickey, U.S.N., retired, to plant a tree in the city as a United Nations symbol, was accepted by the local Lions Club at its meeting Tuesday in the Governor Clinton Hotel.

Planting of the tree will be in conjunction with the club's part in the citywide tribute to the United Nations October 28, and the club has other plans pending for the program.

Capt. Hickey, who is on Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk's committee for observance of U.N. Day, said he looked upon the planting of a tree in a public place in the city as a move that would represent the potential growth of the United Nations and serve as a reminder to help inspire faith and hope in that organization.

Daniel Weisberg was named chairman of the club's committee for the U.N. Day observance.

Roger Baer announced that plans have been completed for the club's Halloween party at the Twaitskill Club October 30.

C. C. Dimford, state commissioner of Agriculture and Markets, was a guest of the club, and a film appropriate to the occasion of his visit, was on tree farming in the Pacific Northwest.

Theodore Lee, first vice-president of the club, presided in the absence of Frank Martocci, president, who was out of the city.

Republican Women's Speaker

Mrs. Thomas Moseley of Nyack, elder sister of Mrs. Earl Warren, greeted by Mrs. Vincent G. Connelly, president of the Ulster County Women's Republican Club Tuesday afternoon at the Governor Clinton Hotel. Mrs. Moseley was the guest speaker for the club. (Freeman Photo.)

Warren Consented To Run on Basis Of His Patriotism

Gov. Earl Warren of California accepted the Republican nomination for vice president of the United States not because of the position or money involved but because he felt it was the place he could serve his country best, Mrs. Thomas Moseley explained to the Ulster County Women's Republican Club Tuesday afternoon at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

Mrs. Moseley is the elder sister of Mrs. Earl Warren and spoke on behalf of the election of the Republican candidate this fall.

Referring to Governor Thomas E. Dewey, candidate for president, and Governor Warren, Mrs. Moseley said that with these two men "who are so clean and wholesome, the government of the people and welfare of the people will be at heart."

We will have the kind of government that Abraham Lincoln spoke about... of the people, by the people and for the people."

Continuing with Lincoln's Gettysburg address, the speaker referred to the land of freedom and urged freedom for every man, woman and child.

In pointing out the characteristics, particularly of Governor Warren, Mrs. Moseley gave a brief history of his life and work as trial lawyer, district attorney, attorney general and governor of the state.

Cleaned Up California
Mrs. Moseley discussed in detail the crime and bribery rampant in Alameda county until Warren was given the opportunity to fight against it and enforce the laws. During the course of his investigations, the mayor was sent to prison, a member of the board of education was found guilty of embezzlement, and the head of the local hospital had several charges brought against him. She explained also the threats against Mr. Warren and his family.

eral officer to go easy on a crook. Of course he denied it.

This area of New Jersey is a bad land of privileged crime under license or tolerance by the political mob which sent Meany and Rossbach to the courts. The average trial juries and grand juries are suspect, not so much because of the personal bad character of individuals as because of the corruption of the surrounding political system. Like a cancer it extends poisonous fingers into banks, courts and even areas of religious influence. The important things to know about a grand juror are: Who holds his mortgage? Who holds his notes? What relatives can be fixed in revenge? How would he like to find a picket line around his factory put there by some of the regional union racketeers whose endorsement Meany proudly accepted during the hearings on his fitness for the federal bench?

Congressman Thomas has exposed a tolerated and protected treachery against the United States and in favor of Russia. President Truman, who had deliberately hidden the truth to preserve the Roosevelt myth, called the disclosures a "red herring." But the information was not Truman's private property and he had a political motive to suppress it far stronger than his professed concern for the reputations of innocent persons who might be fouled with scandal.

On that point it seems that he crossed himself up when he caused his Department of Justice to intimate that it was making "preliminary inquiry" into "charges" regarding Congressman Thomas's conduct of his office.

That was a smear. The Department of Justice has no right to announce that it is making "preliminary inquiries" involving any citizen's reputation. The thing for the D. O. J. to do is to make charges or shut up and let the citizen's reputation alone.

That smear of Thomas is a "red herring" as Truman would put it, to draw attention from the department's own scandalous failures, including the present neglect and postponement of the Rossbach case until Election Day, and from Truman's own solicitude for accused traitors of the United States and likely suspects. CALL FOR PHILIP MORRIS

Many persons think that by working money they are gaining safety for themselves. If money is your only hope for independence, you will never have it. The only real security that a man can have in this world is a reserve of knowledge, experience and ability.

Henry Ford, Sr.

The story is told about a certain candidate for sheriff in a nearby county, who got 35 votes out of a total 6500 which were cast. The next day, he walked down the main drag with two guns strapped to his belt.

Citizen: "You were not elected, and you have no right to carry guns."

Man: "Listen, brother, a man who doesn't have any more friends than I do, needs to carry a gun."

Catch As Catch Can

More often than not, there is a lesson to be learned. Strangers are a matter of course she isn't pursued.

Experts claim that high heels impair the muscles of the legs but such a statement will not stop the ladies from wearing them as long as they are in fashion.

Some women attain their ends by not taking enough exercise.

Nonagenarian: "I am dying without an enemy in the world." Consoling Parson: "That is splendid, John, to have gone through life without making an enemy."

Nonagenarian: "No! No! Not that, parson. The So-and-Sos are all dead."

Ham: "This is tough luck." Mortally, as he leaned out of a window of the ark.

Ham: "Why, we've got all this water all around us to fish in, and only two fish worms on board."

The ardent horticulturist was showing a dear old lady some of the slips and seedlings he was raising along.

Horticulturist: "That plant in the green pot belongs to the gardenia family."

Old lady: "Ooing!" "I see and you're making it for them while they're away on a trip?"

Leaves From Boyle's Notebook

By HAL BOYLE

New York (P)—The question this Christmas isn't whether the children will continue to believe in Santa Claus.

It's whether Santa Claus can go on believing in himself. Every year he must be finding it more difficult.

No figure of modern times—except perhaps Mother Goose—has had a harder time keeping his self-confidence than the fun-loving Saint. He has more critics than a French premier, and season after season he is finding himself cabinied, cramped and confined by more restrictions.

Take 1947—a really tough year for Santa. Psychologists issued stern warnings that he could damage a child's whole personality by giving him the wrong gift.

And the Saint was brought under municipal ordinance. In one place he was forbidden to show up at department stores for his usual pre-season warmup if he had taken a shot of rock-and-rye to guard against pneumonia. In some cities he had to have his beard fireproofed. In others they turned the fit gun to the old man—his whiskers had to be 99 and 44/100 per cent pure.

The approach of the 1948 season finds new hurdles, hedges and barriers in the path of the red-suited man of good will. Mr. Claus must promise to quit promising the moon to children. And his voice is being de-boomed. The 1948 Santa no longer will bellow—“Ho! Ho! Ho!” He will titter—“Tee, hee, hee!”

These new points were decided on this week at a one-day training school for Santa Claus held at—of all places—the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. Nineteen Kris Kringles showed up—most came by taxicab—as well as a number of child psychologists and parent education experts.

The conferees, all former children themselves, pretty well agreed that for years Santa's booming laugh has been so loud it startled many sleeping small fry. So that Christmas tradition is out. And the Santas present, in order to get a gilt-edged diploma certifying they were fit to deal intelligently and sympathetically with children, also had to pledge “to make no promises unless they can be fulfilled.”

The prospect for 1949 and the years to come looks even bleaker for Santa Claus.

For if this old soft-hearted scallawag is really to fit himself to the pattern of the atom age, there are a lot more changes to be made.

Why, for example, should the idol of childhood remain a fat man? Too much fat is unhealthy. Santa Claus is going to have to go on a diet, train off his blubber and put on some good solid muscle. Spraying his whiskers with DDT is only a temporary measure. He's going to have to whack off those germ-catchers, get rid of his five-o'clock shadow permanenly. The best he can hope to hold on to is a mustache—like Thomas E. Dewey.

And dear old Santa is going to have to mend his past—and perhaps change his clothing. Why do you suppose he wears that red suit? Did you know that Santa Claus isn't merely the patron saint of virgins and children? He's also the adopted patron saint of seafaring men, thieves, and—yes—Russia.

What is he doing up there at the North Pole anyway? Just toying around? This fellow Claus will bear a lot more looking into. He's got plenty to explain—this mysterious stranger, who comes and goes in the night.

SHOKAN NEWS

Shokan, Oct. 13—Mr. and Mrs. Paul Engler are reported to have sold their Ashokan farm to New Yorkers. Engler was obliged to curtail his farming activities last year on account of poor health.

Otto Knapp and Eugene Isaacs, two Brooklyn youths who spent a part of last summer here, were in Shokan for the week-end.

Most of the summer residents of the Coons District of Shokan have returned to the city, some of them having remained through September. Edward C. Bostock was removed from the Kingston Hospital to his winter home in Bryn Athyn, Pa., following partial recovery from a severe attack of illness several weeks previously.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard F. Ruckert have invested in one of the new Ford cars.

The Rev. Stanley Jones, former Ashokan boy, has been transferred from the Treadwell Methodist Church pastorate to Highland. The Treadwell Church repaired following the $20,000 fire which wrecked the edifice March 13, was rededicated Sunday morning, September 19, with special services at which the Rev. Arthur

G. Carroll, former district superintendent, was guest preacher. The occasion also coincided with the church's centennial.

Around the Town

Shoulder grading is proceeding at a great rate along the new concrete ribbons of the Ontario Trail. It looks for most of the distance as though two more lanes might be laid with little, if any fill work. Some time may be.

Mrs. Harry Weeks, has returned to her duties at Phoenix after having spent a week in New York. . . . Ashokan Abe says his uncle, ordinarily a Mr. Milktoast sort of a chap, got real sore when Abe's aunt told him in the course of a family spat that she was “sewing her wedding dress for a possible second marriage.”

Echo of Past

Suppose, now, we have another look at one of the readers' 90-year-old copy of the Ulster Democrat. Incidentally, The Democrat wasn't the only weekly published in the village of Kingston in 1858: the Ulster Republican, S. I. Hommel, proprietor, was printed on a hand press and it took half a day to run off the edition. Fred Kent was “polier boy” and others on the staff were George Eiting, Robert Holdridge and Isaac Rosepaugh.

There was also the Kingston Press, published by Daniel Bradbury who at one time ran the tavern in the old village of Shokan. . . . Perhaps the wackiest ad of the 100 or more in The Democrat, and of all time for that matter, is that of the merchant who signs himself “Boot,” and which runs, in part, as follows: I belong to the Democrat Union, U. S. President Pierce, D.D.D. I belong to the Broadway Frenchman, Indian Chief, sheriff, Village Hall—I'm no Buchanan, no American, no Republican, but a public officer. I'm no No Nothing, either. . . . I belong to the mail bags, then to Albany, to drafts, notes—all bills is par, no counterfeits. . . . We live in a land where there's plenty to eat and drink—muslin and calico, boots and shoes. The bills come in sheets, let 'm come in sheets; keeps money in circulation. We plow and sow. Their boots come in sheets and pairs. So let 'em come in pairs, and I belong to selling boots and shoes as cheap as they do. . . . I belong to the navy, what darned fools are in the world, some knows it and some don't know it. The great cheap boot and shoe store is at No. 94 North Front street, head of Wall, Kingston.—Boot. (You figure it out, Reader. We gather that the advertiser has a message to put across. Maybe he belongs so that folks up around Shokan need no longer carry their Sunday shoes and stockings until within sight of the church—circa 1858).

Purists Are Chided

Buenos Aires (P)—The city's “pure Spanish” campaign has backfired. Just after the city hall decreed that ungrammatical posters would be torn down, a newspaper pointed out that the city's own subway signs referred to “paths” instead of “sidewalks.” Also the monument to the founders of the city speaks of “the anniversary of its foundation . . .” rather than the correct Spanish form “anniversary of a foundation.” This mistake is cut into stone and can't be changed.

Miss America Will Get About $15,000 Cash

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 13 (AP)—Bebe Shopp of Hopkins, Minn., winner of the Miss America contest last month, will have picked up about $15,000 by Christmas for personal appearances and endorsements of commercial products.

All this is in addition to the $5,000 scholarship and $3,000 automobile she was awarded when she took the title, Lenora Slaughter, Miss America pageant director, said yesterday.

Miss Slaughter said no one gets a "cut" from Miss Shopp's income, but that it still is too soon to estimate how much she will have earned when she gives up her title next September.

Hoover Declares 5th Column Busy Building Ill-Will

New York, Oct. 13 (AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover said last night that Communist "fifth columns" are working constantly for ill-will between this country and our South American neighbor nations.

Mr. Hoover spoke at a dinner of the Americas Foundation, where he received the Americas award for his "contribution to homophilic amity and understanding."

The Foundation promotes exchange scholarships between North and South America.

"Nowadays," Mr. Hoover said, "Communist fifth columns in every country systematically and incessantly, by conspiracy and by subsidized press and radio, excite fear and ill will against us."

"Nor have we been without fault," he added.

"In two periods we have interfered with the internal affairs in these independent sovereignties."

"Thirty years ago we undertook, in two countries, to restore order by the use of troops. Unfortunately, in the past five years, some officials from our State Department have regretfully interfered in internal elections."

Against this, he said, "there is the long record of 170 years devotion to the independence of, and service to, our neighbors."

Mr. Hoover said "we need no Marshall Plan for the American countries," but "we need methods to release the capital energies of the peoples."

Excessive taxation is hurting business development in this hemisphere, he said.

Video Vixen Invades Home, Seen as 'Menace'

Hollywood, Oct. 13 (AP)—Does your husband want to stay home nights by the television set?

Watch out, sister.

A new menace is invading the happy home—the Video Vixen.

Paul Garrison, former pin-up photographer who now heads a television movie firm, said today the Lane Turner and the Rita Hayworths are pikers compared to the television cuties.

Husbands have been safe with the movie vixens, Garrison said, because they can be seen only in crowds. Crowds, he added, bring on mass inhibitions.

But listen to what he said about the Video Vixens:

"The feminine rivalry offered by television sirens is deadly because it catches the male on his home field, in bedroom slippers and a relaxed mood."

It wiles turn the lights down low, light the fireplace and serve refreshments—that makes it even worse.

Instead, Garrison said, better urge hubby to spend an evening out with the boys.

Airlift Brings Extra Coal

As a result of U. S. planes' record airlift tonnage, flown on Air Force Day, Berlin families with two or more children under 10 have an extra coal ration coming. This dealer, in the American zone, fills a sack for a qualified family. (Photo by NEA-Acme staff correspondent Erich Engel.)

Jap Communist Shows New Suit—From U.S.

Tokyo, Oct. 13 (AP)—When Communist Kyuichi Tokuda showed up in the Diet today in a new suit, members who are a bit shoddy admired it.

Tokuda was asked to stand for all to see the natty, double-breasted suit.

"From the Soviet Union?"

one lawmaker asked.

"No," Tokuda blushed.

"Friends in the United States."

They walked out of the first E.R.P. meeting in Paris and declared war on the whole program.

Giving up on a four-power Germany, six western nations met in London to try to put western Germany, composed of the American, British and French zones, on its feet economically.

This was not philanthropic enterprise. Western Europe had no hope of recovery unless it could obtain German coal and include the Ruhr's great industrial potential in its recovery plans.

To obtain these objectives, it was necessary to give the millions in western Germany some hope for the future. They had to be included in the political and economic plans for Europe.

Thus it was decided to set up a western German government and tie Germany economy into the European Recovery Program.

A western German government would spell defeat for Russia's plans for a Communist Germany, which stood the best chance of success by rising out of poverty and chaos.

The Russians reasoned that Berlin was the weak point in the western armor.

If the Soviets could strangle Berlin and oust the western powers, they would gain enormously in prestige throughout Europe.

They could set up a German central government in the old capital which would appeal to all nationalist Germans. And most Germans are nationalists.

In March, they demanded the right to inspect American and British military trains on the charge the west was smuggling out war criminals and undesirable elements of other types.

The west refused to allow this inspection, saying it would be an infringement of sovereignty. The Russians refused to allow the trains to go through. So the military trains stopped running.

In a few weeks the Soviets charged the western powers with "looting" this wrecked city by removing factories and businesses. They refused to allow any freight train to pass from Berlin to the west unless it had a Soviet-granted license.

The trains returned empty.

The next step was to delay and hamper incoming shipments by inspections.

Then the western powers put in currency reform in western Germany to end inflation which was wrecking recovery plans.

The Soviets immediately (in June) closed the rail line with the excuse of "technical difficulties."

The large line developed "technical difficulties." The highway was shut by new controls, on the excuse the western powers would use it to smuggle marks into the Soviet zone.

Took to Air

With the land routes closed the western powers resorted to the arm that won them the war—air power.

Vast fleets of air transports—mostly American—roared over Berlin. This time they brought food, medicine and coal to more than 2,000,000 western Berliners.

The Russians have protested the airlift. Their pilots have buzzed the western transports. Their flak guns have created nuisances in the corridors. But the lift has gone on.

In the air the Russians are at the same disadvantage as the west was on the ground. They may commit the overt act which might bring war. On the ground the west would have to push its armed convoys across the Soviet border. In the air, the Russians must shoot a British or American plane down to stop it. There is no other way.

Thus far the Russians have shown no inclination to shoot.

But Berlin has become such an international issue it is believed the Soviets would risk war in the event force was tried. The stakes have become too great for a retreat without some face-saving compromise.

Berlin: World's No. 1 Bogey

By WES GALLAGHER

Berlin, Oct. 13 (AP)—This rubble heap city of three million has become the world's No. 1 headache through too much goodwill in 1944 and too little in 1948.

The United States and Britain had too much good-will and trust in future international relations in 1944.

The Soviet Union's lack of good-will in carrying out international agreements brings a crisis over Berlin in 1948.

How did it happen?

It began around a conference table in London in 1944. At the time was the European advisory commission set up by Russia, the United States and Great Britain.

Victory was in the air. Soviet armies were advancing on Germany from the east. The western powers had smashed into France and stood on the German borders.

Allied air bombs shook the Reich from end to end. Berlin was not the least of the targets.

Russia, the United States and Britain were united in a common aim—to smash Germany. The watchword was cooperation.

The men around the table set up lines for the occupation in Germany without too much trouble.

Then it became a question of which city should be the seat of government for the victorious powers. The Russians wanted Berlin—which was deep in their assigned zone.

The Americans were opposed. First, they felt centering of German activity around the traditional capital would revive German nationalism. Second, they felt a border city which required no special corridors would be better.

The Russians insisted on their choice. It seemed not too important at the time, when all stress was on cooperation. So, the west gave in.

Berlin was set as the allied capital.

U. S. State Department realists said specific and iron-clad agreements should be drawn up, providing means of getting in and out of the city through the Soviet-occupied zone.

The American representative, Ambassador John Winant, demurred. He said it was more important to show good-will to the Soviets than haggle over specific agreements.

He won out.

Clearly Established

The right of the western powers to be in Berlin as occupying powers was clearly established by the London agreements. The getting in and out was left to the good-will of the Russians.

Finally, U. S. Gen. Lucius D. Clay and British representatives worked out agreements with the Soviet commander on moving western troops to the city and supplying them. The western allies were given the use of one railroad and the international highway between Berlin and Helmstedt, on the British zone border.

Subsequent four-power agreements provided air corridors and worked out the exact number of trains to be moved over the rail lines daily. The western powers undertook to feed the hungry population of their sectors as well as their occupation troops. The Russians agreed to this.

These agreements were clear and worked for nearly two years with only minor difficulties.

Meanwhile, however, the era of good-will was running out. The allies were at odds on what kind of a post-war Germany should be created. Other east-west conflicts cropped up around the world.

The Russians wanted a Communist-dominated central German government with full police powers. This was unacceptable to the west.

The Allied Control Council, set up to govern all of Germany, bogged down with Soviet vetoes.

Each power governed its zone of Germany as it saw fit.

The foreign ministers of the Big Four tried to solve the situation. They ended in worse deadlocks.

Meanwhile, divided western Germany was falling to pieces. Inflation killed the incentive to work. Factories lacked raw materials. Unemployment mounted. The 48,000,000 in western Germany were living in a vast poorhouse, supported by British and American taxpayers who had paid millions to win the war and now had to pay more to keep their enemies from starving.

The rest of western Europe was not much better off. Communist parties, thriving on poverty and misery, made headway.

Something had to be done, and it was. The United States agreed to finance a vast European Recovery Program, designed to make western Europe stand on its own feet in 1952.

The Russians did not like this.

Joseph J. Slezek for the repose of her soul. Responses to the Mass were sung by the children's choir assisted by Miss Theresa Gehring at the organ. At the offertory Miss Eileen Reis sang the "Ave Maria." Theasket was completely banked with flowers and many spiritual bouquets in the form of Mass cards were received. Sunday evening the Rev. Joseph J. Slezek called and led those assembled in the recitation of the Rosary. Burial was in Mt. Calvary Cemetery where the Rev. Joseph J. Slezek gave the final blessing. The bearers were John Kovacs, Carl Galin, Walter Galin, John Ziros, Jr., John Tatarzewski and Anthony Kaminski.

Chinese General Will Lose Lump Sum Pay

Nanking (AP)—President Chiang Kai-shek has won the opening rounds of a battle to take government funds out of the hands of his generals through a system of modern military finance. The new procedure, once opposed so vigorously by some commanders that American advisors literally were chased from one headquarters and told not to return—became effective September 1 in 91 units of the army, and were applied October 1 to 94 more. Eventually they will be extended to cover all military activities of the Chinese government.

President Chiang Kai-shek requested the American advisory group in China several months ago to draft a finance system for his armies. The result was a simplification of finance and accounting procedure now used by the United States armed forces. The new system ends lump-sum payments to commanding generals, a practice which critics said bred corruption and allowed dishonest commanders to grow rich at the expense of poorly fed and equipped troops. It provides that the common soldier in the field will get his pay on time if there are government funds available to pay him.

Directing the new program now spread through nine regional disbursing and accounting offices is Maj.-Gen. Wu Sung-ching, Paris trained chief of military finance. Neither Gen. Wu nor his American advisors claim the new system will eradicate all ills of the Chinese armies' handling of funds. It will, they say, go a long way toward putting the entire national defense ministry on a business-like basis.

Roy M. Sutliff . . .

brought out one of the largest crowds ever to attend.

One of Exchange Organizers

When the used car problem began to burden the automobile industry in 1927 and 1928, Sutliff was one of the dealers who organized the Kingston Used Car Exchange, Inc., and he served as president of this corporation which became a co-operative organization through which car dealers disposed of used cars. The Exchange was located in the "Doc" Smith Garage property off Clinton avenue for some time. When the Kingston Oil Company was incorporated, Mr. Sutliff became actively interested in the corporation, a gasoline and oil distribution company which was formed among local automobile distributors. He served as a member of the board of directors and also as secretary of the Kingston Oil Company.

During his early life, Mr. Sutliff was active in road race driving and became interested in safety driving. He took an active interest in the affairs of the Empire State Automobile Dealers Association and in A. A. A. activities. Recently he put his safety ideas into active practice in this locality when through his co-operation the A. A. A. Safety Driving course was instituted in Kingston High school and later in the Saugerties High School. Mr. Sutliff donating Chevrolet cars for use in these instruction courses which were A. A. A. sponsored.

Interested in Civic Matters

In civic matters Mr. Sutliff always took a deep interest. He was active in Chamber of Commerce work and a director of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce. He was serving at the present time as a director of the National Ulster County Bank of Kingston and of the Savings and Loan Association of Kingston and as a director of the Kingston Hospital.

Mr. Sutliff was an ardent sportsman and fisherman and was keenly interested in preservation and protection of game and fish. Prominent in golf circles locally he served as president of the Twinfalls Golf Club in 1947 and took an active part in promoting the game locally.

During World War II, Mr. Sutliff was appointed a member of the Kingston War Price and Rationing Board in January of 1944 to fill a vacancy created through the resignation of Robert E. Radin, one of the original members of the local rationing board, who resigned on January 1, 1944. Mr. Sutliff was appointed to fill the vacancy by the district director of the Albany district office of O. P. A. at the request and recommendation of Matthew H. Herzog, chairman of the Kingston board. He served as a member of the War Price and Rationing Board until the end of rationing.

Girl Is Given Biggest Penicillin Dose on Record

New York (AP)—A 19-year-old girl here may hold the record for the greatest amount of penicillin received in a concentrated period of treatment. She was given 450,000,000 units of the drug during 47 days.

The girl was suffering from sub-acute bacterial endocarditis, a disease in which a damaged heart valve continually throws infected bacteria into the bloodstream. The gigantic doses of penicillin cleared up the blood condition, and it hasn't returned.

Doctors of Beth-El Hospital, Brooklyn, where she was treated, said they believed the total dosage of penicillin was the largest or one of the largest ever given to one person in a short period of time.

The average barometric pressure at sea level is 30.021 inches of mercury.

Late Bulletin

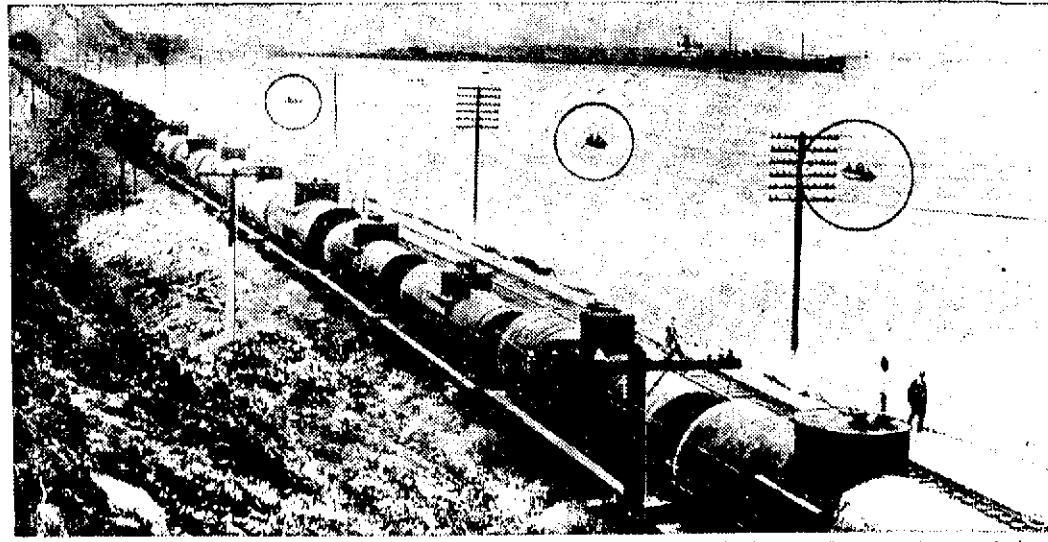

Elissa Landi, stage, radio and screen actress, who resides just outside the city in the Plank Road area, was reported "seriously ill" at the Kingston Hospital today.

The actress is under the care of Dr. Kenneth H. LeFever, who said that he could not give any report on the nature of her illness. She has been at the hospital since Sunday it was reported there today.

Dr. LeFever said that he could report nothing other than the fact that the actress is "quite ill."

Among recent stage engagements of the actress was one during the past summer at the Woodstock Playhouse where she had appeared on other occasions. She was also in a benefit show there last month.

100 Candidates Are After 32 Governor Posts in Elections

Washington, Oct. 13 (AP)—An even 100 candidates are running for the 32 governorships at stake in the November 2 elections.

At least four of the contests are attracting more than state-wide interest.

Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, and Michigan all now have Republican governors. But the Democrats say they have a good chance in the first three and mark Michigan as a "possible." Republicans say they will hold all four, but concede some are close races.

Republicans and Democrats now divide the nation's governorships 24 and 24. In all, 33 states are choosing governors this year, but Maine already has held its state election. Frederick G. Payne, a Republican, won on September 13.

The 32 offices to be filled are now held by 19 Republicans and 13 Democrats. Five Republican and ten Democratic governors hold over the year.

The size of the presidential majorities in the various states may determine most gubernatorial winners. But this is not necessarily so in states where local issues and personalities predominate.

Only in Georgia have the Republicans refrained from putting up a candidate. There, Herman Talmadge, Democrat, "white supremacy" advocate, is all alone on the governor's ballot.

Of the 100 candidates all told, minor parties are running 37.

Six Democrats and 13 Republicans are candidates for reelection.

In Ohio, former Democratic Gov. Frank J. Lausche is reportedly running a close race against Republican Gov. Thomas J. Herbert, who is seeking a second two-year term.

Next door in Indiana an even closer contest is said to be under way. Henry F. Schricker, Democratic governor in 1940-44, is challenging Hobard Creighton of Warsaw, a Republican.

In Illinois Gov. Dwight H. Green, G.O.P. national convention keynoter, seeks a third term against Adlai E. Stevenson, Chicago lawyer and diplomat.

Michigan Democrats have put up G. Mennen Williams, 37-year-old war veteran and grandson of the founder of a fortune in soaps and toiletries, against Gov. Kim Siler, Republican, a colorful campaigner. Siler is 54.

Next in importance from a national standpoint will be the Connecticut and Washington races.

In Connecticut, former O.P.A. Chief Chester Bowles is seeking to unseat Republican Gov. James C. Shannon. Former Gov. Arthur B. Lange (R.) is opposing Democratic Gov. Mon C. Wallgren in Washington. Wallgren is a close friend of President Truman.

Wallace Plans Trip To Georgia Saturday

Chicago, Oct. 13 (AP)—Henry Wallace—spattered by eggs and shouted down by hecklers at some meetings on his recent campaign swing through southeastern states—is going to Georgia.

The Progressive Party announced yesterday that its presidential candidate will fly to Dalton, Ga., on Saturday, October 15. There he will address between 100 and 200 preachers at a national meeting of the Church of God.

Immediately after the talk Wallace will fly to Michigan to resume his midwestern campaign schedule.

Last night, in a radio talk to Americans of Italian descent, Wallace said "the men of Wall Street and the military" are "making an American colony out of Italy."

In a continuation of his attacks on American foreign policy Wallace said the Marshall Plan is not helping Italy and the "bankers and generals . . . must stop interfering in Italy—under the false guise of helping Italy."

Says Celia Can Get Out

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 13 (AP)—The New Haven Fire Department says Celia can get out of that cellar by herself. Celia, a small dog, taking a midnight walk with her mistress, ran down a plank into the cellar excavation of a new building. She couldn't get out. At six minutes before midnight the fire department was summoned. Three firemen descended. When they ascended it at 1 a. m. Celia remained in the cellar. Fireman Charles Bogen had to get a physician out of bed to take care of a bite on his hand.

Sherman Is Chosen Suffragan Bishop For Long Island

Garden City, N. Y., Oct. 13 (AP) — The Rev. Jonathan G. Sherman was elected last night as Suffragan Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Long Island.

Bishop Sherman, rector of St. Thomas's Church, Bellrose, was elected by the diocesan convention.

As Suffragan, he will assist the Rt. Rev. James P. Pettey, bishop of the diocese which embraces Brooklyn, Queens and Nassau and Suffolk counties.

Bishop Sherman was named on the third ballot, receiving 81 clerical and 77 lay votes. The necessary vote on the last ballot was 70. The convention voted to make the election unanimous.

On the first ballot there were 15 nominees, but Bishop Sherman led from the start. The candidates dwindled and the principal competition on the second and third ballots was among Bishop Sherman and the venerable canons Charles W. MacLean, archdeacon of Suffolk county, Edward Saunders, archdeacon of Brooklyn, and Harry J. Storch, archdeacon of Nassau and Queens counties.

The Suffragan, 41 years old, was born in St. Louis, the son of the Rev. Stephen Fish Sherman, an Episcopal rector there. He received a B.A. from Yale in 1929 and was graduated from the General Theological Seminary in New York city in 1933. He was ordained a deacon in 1933 and a priest a year later.

In 1938, he married Frances L. Casady, daughter of the Protestant Episcopal bishop of Oklahoma. They have four children. Shortly after his marriage, Bishop Sherman became rector of St. Thomas's.

From 1943 to 1945, Bishop Sherman was editor of the Diocesan magazine.

Canterbury Supports Rearmament Campaign

London, Oct. 13 (AP) — Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, archbishop of Canterbury, added his support today to Britain's rearmament campaign.

"The international skies have become very dark and threatening," the churchman told the joint synod of both houses of the Convocation of Canterbury. "No one, I suppose, would say that another war is impossible. It is, I think, the bounden duty of this country to be as much prepared for such a situation as it can be, and to recover some of the means of defense which it has, perhaps lightly, laid aside. But I trust that none of us will ever speak or think of war as in any way inevitable."

Pitching Horseshoes

By Billy Rose

Let me tell you a fascinating story about you guessed it—myself.

One evening 15 years ago, I had an appointment to see a Hollywood producer at his home. For the two hell-chilling hours, he kept me waiting in his outer hall, and when he finally showed up, he didn't even invite me to raise my ego and posterior in his living room. Right then, there and away, I resolved to repay this unkindness in kind, and, sure enough, 10 years later I got my chance. The night the revival of "Show Boat" opened at my theatre, the ringo merchant phoned to ask if I could help him get a pair of good seats. I told him I'd be glad to take care of him, and I did—row Y, right next to the first balcony.

Next day I wrote him a mock apology and invited him to dine at my home, figuring I'd let him take a good look at my outer hall. But the wounded producer wrote back that he had already sampled my hospitality and wanted no more of it.

And so I did what I always do when I'm stymied—I went to the 42nd Street Library. Somewhere in its 3,500,000 volumes, I felt sure I would find the proper come-uppance and go-downance for the man who had once pushed me around.

The first volume I opened was an anthology of the famous snubs of history. How I dug in! I gave the bird to Alexander the Great, and the business of Napoleon's conquering an Italian province because one of its dukes had called him a shrimp. But none of these case histories seemed to fit mine until I came to the story of Jimmy Hirst, the Yorkshire tanner who had devoted 24 years of his life to getting back with a British peer who had refused to dine with him. This record of revenge gave me a lot of ideas, but before I tell you about them, perhaps I ought to tell you a little something about Jimmy Hirst.

Early in the 19th Century, Jimmy sold the prosperous tannery he owned in Yorkshire, bought himself an estate, laid in a stock of vintage wines and then invited the most exalted gent in the neighborhood, Lord Fitzwilliams, to have dinner with him.

When His Lordship didn't show up, the tanner went calling to find out what was the matter. But he couldn't even get past the moat of Fitzwilliams' castle.

Jimmy brooded about this snub, and then mapped out a campaign to get even.

For openers, he figured out a stunt to take the spotlight away from the nobleman Fitzwilliams who in the habit of driving to nearby Lancaster in a carriage covered with gold leaf, and when the townspeople gathered to gawk, he loved to nod patronizingly and bask in the warmth of their wonder.

"The way to put His Lordship in his place," said Jimmy, "is to give the cabs something really worth ogling." And so he designed an Oriental palanquin (enclosed conveyance borne on the shoulders of men by poles, Webster), encrusted it with semi-precious stones, and hired four husky Yorkshiremen to carry it while he lolled in its silted interior. And from then on, whenever Jimmy appeared in town, Fitzwilliams got no more attention than an unbuttoned sock.

But this was fun and games compared to what the tanner did to His Lordship's favorite pastime—fox-hunting. At the big annual hunt, Jimmy showed up on the back of a bull, and instead of hounds, he brought along a passel of pigs. "Foxes escape in holes in the ground," he explained to the landed gentry, "and my pigs will root them out."

The following year at the Doncaster races, Jimmy further poked fun at the prissy peer by showing up in a riding habit covered with feathers plucked from drake's necks, and when he refused to pay the bookies in English money on the grounds that the faces of the kings on the currency were ugly and reminded him of Lord Fitzwilliams. He designed his own pound notes with buxom wenches coveting on them, and the bookmakers readily accepted them because they were in great demand as souvenirs.

For the next 20 years, the story of this toy feud was lip-and-eared all over England, and every music hall presented at least one comic sketch burlesquing Fitzwilliams and his set. By the time he was 50, Jimmy Hirst was Empire-famous, and the nobleman who had snubbed him had become a symbol of stuffiness from Lands End to the Firth of Forth.

Hirst's revenge, however, was still incomplete—His Lordship had never been to his home. But the tanner took care of this by dying, for among the thousands who showed up at the final rites was Fitzwilliams himself.

This time I couldn't stay away, the much battered nobleman growled. "I had to make sure the audacious scoundrel was really dead."

After I finished reading about Jimmy, I went home and figured out a sure-fire plot to make the Hollywood producer accept my invitation. But there's one thing that stops me from going ahead with it, and that's the footnote to the story of Hirst's revenge. It seems that several commoners got to talk to Fitzwilliams at the funeral, and they all agreed that the beefeater was a bore.

My problem is this: Once you've hounded a Hollywood producer into coming to your house, you've then got a Hollywood producer in your house.

And unless you're trying to rob him, what point is there in that? (Copyright, 1948, by Billy Rose) (Distributed by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Immunization Against Diphtheria in Cities

Albany, Oct. 13—Only 20 out of the 70 upstate New York communities of 10,000 or more population had achieved 70 per cent immunization of their children under five years of age against diphtheria up to June 30, according to a report made public today by Dr. Herman E. Hilleboe, State Health Commissioner. The honor cities are: Batavia,

Binghamton, Hornell, Hudson, Irondequoit, Johnson City, Little Falls, Mamaroneck, Middletown, Newburgh, Ogdensburg, Oneida, Ossining, Oswego, Peekskill, Port Chester, Scarsdale, Syracuse, Watertown, White Plains. The number was the same a year ago but Hornell, Oneida and Peekskill have replaced Corning, Niagara Falls and Rochester on this year's list. Westchester, Columbia and Genesee are the only counties in the state where 70 per cent of the children under five, living outside of communities over 10,000 population, have been immunized. In disclosing these figures Dr. Hilleboe called attention to the fact that only 28 per cent of the larger communities and only five per cent of the counties are reaching the 70 per cent immunization level established by the State Department of Health as advisable to keep diphtheria at the desired low prevalence. The first school to teach linotype operating was opened in Chicago in 1902.

Mrs. Pakh, College Club Speaker for Friday, Is Old Acquaintance of Stone Ridge Woman

When Mrs. Induk Pakh speaks Friday night at Kingston High School Auditorium, she will find Mrs. Matthew Hasbrouck of Stone Ridge anxiously waiting to renew acquaintance. Mrs. Pakh of Korea will be the speaker on the annual scholarship fund program for Kingston College Women's Club Friday at 8 p. m.

The announcement of Mrs. Pakh's appearance in Kingston was the first Mrs. Hasbrouck had heard of her friend since the early war years. Her letters had been returned and she was beginning to believe Mrs. Pakh had not survived.

An address by Mrs. Pakh more than 10 years ago was the foundation for the long friendship with Mrs. Hasbrouck.

"She was a tiny diminutive figure but so dynamic she impressed me to such a degree that I waited afterward to speak to her," Mrs. Hasbrouck says of their first meeting. It was at Northfield Seminary sometime in the late 30's when Mrs. Hasbrouck's daughter was a student at the school.

Twentieth Century Club Hears of Palestine Problem

Twentieth Century Club met Monday afternoon with Mrs. C. B. Dickinson, 152 Pearl street. The topic was "Arabs in Palestine," a survey of the subject given by Mrs. Harry Walker. The paper quoted well known authorities as she described the chaos created by the present conditions there. She suggested that it would seem the wisdom of a Solomon would be needed to solve the problems of the best interests of Jews and Arabs.

During the business meeting Mrs. R. H. Woodard, president, was voted as a delegate to the convention of the State Federation of Women's Clubs.

Members were urged to be X-rayed and not only benefit themselves but help to keep Ulster county in its present position, sixth in the top of the list for its health program.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. S. Maxwell Taylor.

Woodstock, Oct. 13 — Mrs. Louise C. Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt Shultis, Bearsville, was united in marriage to Chester E. Wolven, son of Mrs. Anna Wolven, Saugerties, Sunday at 1:30 p. m. in the Methodist parsonage, this village. The Rev. Charles E. Bennett, pastor of the Woodstock Methodist Church, performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride wore an aqua suit with black accessories and corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Nicholas Blazy of this village as matron of honor wore a grey suit with corsage of yellow roses.

Raymond Wolven, Saugerties, was his brother's best man.

A small reception was held at the Kirkland Hotel. Afterward Mr. and Mrs. Wolven left for a wedding trip to New York and Washington, D. C. They will live in Woodstock.

Lowell Club Hears Two Papers at Regular Meeting

Lowell Literary Club met with Mrs. J. J. Murphy, Pearl street, Tuesday. Mrs. H. L. A. Flick gave a paper on color. She told of the various effects color has on actions of people, in heat, radiation and reflection. Color in occupational therapy, animals, vegetation, industry and music and other forms was explained.

The second paper for the afternoon was given by Mrs. John D. Graves. It was a biography of Dr. William J. Robbins, director of the Bronx Botanical Gardens. His work of experimenting with 5,000 varieties of fungi was explained. It is hoped that something may be developed there which will cure tuberculosis and cancer. The Infants Paralysis committee contributed $225,000 for experimenting on the 100,000 known fungi.

The next meeting will be held with Mrs. William Longyear 216 Tremper avenue, October 19, at 3:30 p. m.

Expert Owns And Operates Well Known Beauty Salon

Michael Mazzuca is the owner and operator of one of the best known beauty salons in Kingston, his modern equipped shop being situated at 50 North Front street, midway between Wall and Crown streets.

There individual hair styling may be obtained for the entire family, for in conjunction with the department where women's hair is given expert treatment, is conducted a separate tonsorial section devoted to barbering for the men folks.

Mr. Mazzuca, who has been in business at his present quarters for 17 years, is most familiarly known as "Mickey" and his establishment of course as "Mickey's." That is because he has such a pleasing personality and it is his practice to direct all work done by his corps of assistants. These assistants have been trained by Mickey who himself keeps up with trend of the times, makes a study of the constantly changing styles of coiffure and does not hesitate in introducing them to his clientele. Mickey devotes his entire time to permanent waving and hair cutting. In this way Mickey's styles are always to be found up to the minute, meeting the vogue of the times.

The shop is equipped with the latest operational devices with which any hair style may be produced, no matter how complicated and at the same time special care is taken to bring out the best effects consistent with the individual requirements of each customer.

The same individuality prevails in the barbering department where no matter what kind of hair a man has, Mickey's artists have the ability and know how to shave with a comforting light touch and to cut hair which meets with the customers individual liking.

Dr. Charles Jenkins, Veterinarian, Weds Barbara Ann Knapp
Miss Barbara Ann Knapp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd J. Knapp, Carmel, was married to Dr. Charles Jenkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. David M. Jenkins of New Paltz, October 3, at Mt. Carmel Baptist Church. The Rev. Pierce Simpson, officiated assisted by the pastor, the Rev. Otto Reinher, brother-in-law of the bride, and professor at Wittenburg College, Springfield, N. Y.
Miss Agnes Hyatt was organist. Donald Townsend sang "Ich Liebe Dich und Because." Palms and white gladioli were used for decorations.

Mr. Knapp gave his daughter in marriage. She wore an egg-shell tulle gown trimmed with velvet insertions in the skirt. Her veil was of matching heirloom lace. She carried a Bible with gardenias and streamers of pom-poms.
Mrs. Otto Reinher, Springfield, O., elder sister of the bride, as matron of honor wore a cornflower blue lace gown and carried sweetheart roses. Other attendants were Mrs. DuBois Jenkins, Catskill, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, Miss Josephine Knapp, Carmel, younger sister of the bride, and Miss Ruth Moscow, of Carmel. They wore old rose tulle and marquisette gowns and carried sweetheart roses. Janet Knapp, cousin of the bride, as flower girl wore blue satin trimmed with rose lace and carried a miniature bouquet of roses.

Dr. DuBois Jenkins of Catskill was best man for his brother. Ushers were Dr. John Steele, Cortland; Charles Van Alst, New Paltz, and George Pappas, Brewster, were ushers.
The reception was held at Erickson's at Lake Mahopac for about 130 guests. Afterward the bridal couple left for a wedding trip in the South. She wore a grey suit with green accessories and corsage of gardenias. They will live at Copake Falls where Dr. Jenkins is in partnership with Dr. John J. Mettler.

Mrs. Jenkins is a graduate of Carmel Central School and following graduation was employed in the Cooper Union Library, New York city. For the past year she was secretary to Stanley B. Hoffman, district superintendent of schools for Putnam county.
Dr. Jenkins was graduated from New Paltz High School and New York State Veterinary College, Cornell University, Ithaca, where he was a member of Omega Tau Sigma fraternity. For two years he worked as assistant to Dr. Frederick Schultz of Brewster. At present he is in partnership with Dr. Mettler.

The National Typographical Union was organized at Baltimore in 1852.

Dr. Charles Jenkins, Veterinarian, Weds Barbara Ann Knapp
Miss Barbara Ann Knapp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd J. Knapp, Carmel, was married to Dr. Charles Murray Jenkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. David M. Jenkins of New Paltz, October 3, at St. Charles Baptist Church. The Rev. George Simpson, officiated, assisted by the pastor, the Rev. Otto Reinher, brother-in-law of the bride, and professor at Wittenburg College, Springfield, O.
Miss Agnes Hyatt was organist. Donald Townsend sang "Ich Liebe Dich und Because." Palms and white gladioli were used for decorations.

Mr. Knapp gave his daughter in marriage. She wore an egg-shell tulle gown trimmed with velvet insertions in the skirt. Her veil was of matching heirloom lace. She carried a Bible with gardenias and streamers of pom-poms.
Mrs. Otto Reinher, Springfield, O., elder sister of the bride, as matron of honor wore a coral-flower blue lace gown and carried sweetheart roses. Other attendants were Mrs. DuBois Jenkins, Catskill, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, Miss Josephine Knapp, Carmel, younger sister of the bride, and Miss Ruth Moscow, of Carmel. They wore old rose, taffeta and marquisette gowns and carried sweetheart roses. Janet Knapp, cousin of the bride, as flower girl wore blue satin trimmed with rose lace and carried a miniature bouquet of roses.
Dr. DuBois Jenkins of Catskill was best man for his brother. Ushers were Dr. John Steele, Cortland; Charles Van Alst, New Paltz; and George Pappas, Brewster, were ushers.
The reception was held at Erickson's at Lake Mahopac for about 130 guests. Afterward the bridal couple left for a wedding trip in the South. She wore a grey suit with green accessories and corsage of gardenias. They will live at Copake Falls where Dr. Jenkins is in partnership with Dr. John J. Mettler.
Mrs. Jenkins is a graduate of Carmel Central School and following graduation was employed in the Cooper Union Library, New York city. For the past year she was secretary to Stanley B. Hoffman, district superintendent of schools for Putnam county.
Dr. Jenkins was graduated from New Paltz High School and New York State Veterinary College, Cornell University, Ithaca, where he was a member of Omicron Tau Sigma fraternity. For two years he worked as assistant to Dr. Frederick Schutz of Brewster. At present he is in partnership with Dr. Mettler.

Yankees Name Stengel Successor to Harris

New York, Oct. 13 (AP)—The Yankees have named Charles Dillan Stengel, the former manager of the New York Yankees, as the new manager of the club.

Stengel, who gained big league baseball fame as a player with the New York Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers, and who later managed the Yankees, was named to a two-year contract yesterday. He succeeds Bucky Harris.

The 57-year-old Missourian has been with the Yankees since 1946. He has been a major league manager for the last five years, and has won the American League pennant and played off championships.

Stengel managed several division clubs in the majors, but he had great success in the minors. He led Milwaukee to an American Association flag in 1941.

His greatest forte is said to be managing young players. It was Stengel who first saw greatness in Johnny Mize and Warren Spahn and who developed Gene Bearden into a star pitcher for the Cleveland Indians.

Stengel was a big league outfielder 13 years, starred in three World Series and managed for nine years in the big leagues. He is best remembered for his managing ability.

There was the time Casey, about to play in his semi-final, produced a big flash light in the stadium. From Frankhouse, a pitcher, from the bullpen. Although the spectators roared with laughter, Casey drew a $25 fine.

Another time, Stengel was warned by Captain Bill Klem to stop his heckling or he would be ejected. Klem called a strike on him, whereupon Casey bowed gracefully, doffed his cap and uttered a prayer.

Casey's first job in organized baseball was with his home town Kansas City club in 1910. He also played that year with Kankakee, Ill., and Mayville, Ky. He went two and a half years to a dental school but never got his diploma.

He joined the Dodgers in 1912. In 1918, Stengel was in France when he ended his big league playing career.

Bagatelles:

If you have been dreaming about that return bout between Ronnie Lacelle, the Canadian matinee idol and "Spider" Thompson of Buffalo, forget about it. . . . There won't be any encore, sequel or what you will to one of the most controversial bouts in local amateur boxing history. . . . Authority for the statement is Ben Becker, of Albany, who is the A.A.U.'s director of boxing. . . . When Mr. Becker puts the chill on a bout, it's as irrevocable as last year's income tax payment.

Becker would not elucidate beyond the bare statement that another Lacelle-Thompson shindig would never materialize. . . . Any conjecture must come under the heading of sheer speculation. . . . It seems plausible to us, however, that A.A.U. officials were somewhat disturbed over the reaction to the decision and are attempting to forestall any possible propaganda that it was a buildup for a return bout.

The athletically-minded Becker put in a solid plug for Judges Lou Shore, Fred Eisler and Referee Bob Steele. "They're capable, qualified officials," Becker said, "and called the fight as they saw it." "The fans are entitled to their say and so is the press," he added.

Flotsam and Jetsam:

World Series reflections: The classic was a purist's dream except for the fifth contest when the Braves murdered the Indians, 11-5. . . . Either team could have won any of the other five sets. . . . The Indians' DP combination of Gordon-Boudreau-Robinson was murderous. . . . You could have gotten 1000 to 1 against Bob Feller losing his two starts. . . . Spain was sensational in relief stints but folded in his only start. . . . How do you figure those things out? . . . It was another American League victory but not the kind those old Yankees used to put on. . . . Bearden deserves the hero's halo. . . . What about this Ken Keltner getting only two hits. . . . Steadfast player of the series in our book: Larry Doby, the brilliant young Negro outfielder. . . . He's going to be around a long time. . . . Billy Southworth explained it succinctly: "We were beaten but not outclassed."

Of Men and Mice:

Andy Panzi, the pocket billiard wizard who appears at Nick Kaslich's on October 17, reeled off 66 against Jimmy Cynas a couple days ago. . . . Everyone howls about Kingston High's "tremendous, powerful line." . . . The weight charts don't support such exaggerations. . . . It's a rough, tough line, to be sure, but the average weight is only 182. . . . Back in the middle 30's Middletown High had one that averaged 200. . . . Up to last Saturday one of the highest scores in K.H.S. history was a 500 run of Spring Valley by the Jimmy Cullen-Mike Thome-Tony Debrinsky-Zip-Zaccho juggernaut. . . . Dean Lucarini of Poughkeepsie won the Baird Golf Club tournament last Sunday with a 77 gross. . . . George Hughes of Twaalfskill shot 82. . . . Veteran "Chief" Mueller shot 651 and Jim McCaffrey 600 as Poughkeepsie PVFC barged out 3018 for a new Hudson Valley League record Sunday.

The best way to handle a two-weeks old infant we discovered recently is to leave it strictly alone. Whenever the infant needs ministrations, it is always best to be in the garage looking for the cross-cut saw. If you haven't a cross-cut saw, as we haven't, so much the better.

MULLIGAN' MIKE SAYS: Get your jitney shined up for that trip to Port Jervis Friday night. You should be there.

K.H.S. Eleven Favoreed To Defeat Port Jervis

Tri-Staters Still Have Ace Backfield

The true greatness of the Kingston High School football powerhouse and the probable 1948 DUSO League titleholder will be decided in a major engagement between the Maroon and Port Jervis Friday night under the newly installed arc lights at Glennette Field.

Kingston, with crushing victories over Highland and Middletown, will be odds-on favorite, but Al Chase, Port Jervis' Old Fox, proved Saturday that his defending champions will have something to say about the ultimate outcome.

The Red and Black tripped Newburgh Free Academy 13-0 at the Hill City, capitalizing a fumble and an 87-yard drive. Most of the first string championship line has departed but Port still claims the best backfield in the circuit in speedster Ray Nicolette, Pat Crowley, Dom Marando and Joe Pagano.

Pagano is Standout Although Nicolette is supposed to be the best ball carrier in the DUSO, not a few experts rate Pagano as a superior player.

Port's new front wall alignment and stout backers upheld Newburgh to a net 77 yards. On one occasion the Academicians had first down on Port's 4 and when the sequence of downs ended they were back on the 25 where Port took over.

That Kingston is favored over Port Jervis is no great surprise—not even to Bill Burke who played it close to the vest. It's hard to fault a squad that rolled over Highland 31-0 and Middletown 45-7.

Maroons Ready Kingston's 1948 array regarded as the school's best since 1933 has shown every trait of a stand-out club. It has a hard charging line, fleet, powerful backs, a good pass defense and is virtually impenetrable along the front wall. Middletown was able to net only 29 yards on the ground against the Burkemen.

There is a revenge motive that should find the Maroons "up" for the pivotal engagement at Glennette Field. It was on this same sod on an unhappy day last fall that Kingston lost the DUSO title because of that now historic "12th man" incident. Even on that day Kingston was the better club. They outplayed Port from goal line to goal line but Port walked off with the title.

This could happen again Friday night but strictly off the records for the season it appears that burden of the proof rests with the hosts.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT (By The Associated Press) Jersey City, N. J.—Willie Pep, 132, Hartford, Conn., outpointed Chuck Burton, 127, Newark, N. J., 8 (non-title).

Los Angeles—Maxie Docusen, 134, New Orleans, stopped Mario Trigo, 135, Tijuana, Mexico, 7.

Honolulu—Carl "Bobo" Olson, 169, Honolulu, stopped Roy Brooks, 153 1/2, Manila, 3.

Ellis Hagler, Duke line coach and head golf coach, has been named president of the NCAA Golf Coaches Association for 1948-49.

Markson Is Promoted

New York, Oct. 13 (AP)—The Twentieth Century Sporting Club has announced several changes in the front office of the promotional organization.

Harry Markson, publicity chief, moves up to the position of managing director and will act with Sol Strauss in promoting fights. Strauss has been acting director during the two-year illness of Mike Jacot.

Francis Albertanti, former publicity man for the rival Tournament of Champions, succeeds to Markson's old post.

Lew Burston becomes the European representative of the concert Burston has numerous connections on the continent and brought Marcel Cerdan, the new middleweight champion, from France to fight Tony Zale for the U.S. title.

The Tournament of Champions is challenging the longtime fight promoting supremacy of the Jacobs' organization.

Blades New Farm Chief

Brooklyn, Oct. 13 (AP)—Ray Blades, a coach with the Dodgers for the past two seasons, has been made overseer of the Brooklyn baseball club's sprawling farm system.

The former St. Louis Cardinals manager was named yesterday to the post held by Burt Shotton before the latter was called up to succeed Leo Durocher as manager in July.

The Dodgers recently announced renewal of Shotton's contract as skipper.

Blades' position on the coaching staff will go to Milt Stock coach with the Cubs since 1944.

Little Longhorn

Austin, Tex. (AP)—For the fourth straight year, tiny Byron (Pup) Gillyard holds the title of the University of Texas' smallest football player. Gillyard runs the scales up to 149 pounds in uniform. The largest in 1948 is mountaineer Bud McFadin, 323-pound sophomore lineman.

EMMETT R. KILCOYNE*

has switched to Calvert Reserve because Calvert tastes better.

Smoother, much smoother! Reason . . . Calvert is vacuum distilled by a patented low temperature process. Heat that "breaks down" and scorches the mash is avoided. Distilling gently at practically room temperature is a modern scientific miracle that helps make Calvert smoother.

Mellower, to be sure! Because . . . Calvert whiskies are produced by exclusive, modern methods. Calvert's continuous pressure cooking, for instance, means constant control over the mash, less exposure to heat . . . another reason for Calvert's unmatched uniformity, mellowness.

Milder, yes! Here's why: Because . . . Calvert whiskies are distilled especially for blending . . . and Calvert's blending experience is the greatest in the industry. Calvert maintains an unequalled "library" of over 200 fine blending whiskies and spirits for blending purposes.

Tastes better, naturally! Because . . . from grain to bottling . . . Calvert quality is safeguarded by advanced scientific controls. Too, Calvert is taste-tested by a "Consumer Jury" of folks like you . . . to make sure it's the whiskey most palatable to the most people.

No wonder . . . every day, from coast-to-coast, more folks are Switching to Calvert!

Davenport-Van Gonsic Golf Duel Set Sunday

Babe Zaharias Sets New Mark

Los Angeles, Oct. 12 (AP)—A new record in the history of the LPGA was set today by Babe Zaharias, who won the first round of the U.S. Women's Open today.

Ms. Zaharias, 34, set a new record for a woman in the 36-hole tournament by shooting a 134, or 10 under par.

She was the only woman to shoot under 140 in the first round. Her score was 134, or 10 under par.

The U.S. Women's Open is the first of a series of tournaments to be held in New Orleans.

Williamson's Grid Ratings

By PAUL H. WILLIAMSON.

Northwestern is approaching the middle of the 1948 season still the major team in the nation, with a 9.04 rating with North Carolina second.

In the System's "first 10" this week, Northwestern moves up to second place from third. Army, which was second last week, slid all the way back to the 10th slot.

Notre Dame, California and Minnesota are the third, fourth and fifth ranking teams of the country respectively.

111 82.6 Per Cent

Of 366 games reported last week, the Williamson System picked the winners in 82.6 per cent of the contests. Northwestern over Minnesota was, of course, the week's top pick. But there were a couple of good ones among last Friday's games—Colorado A. & M. beat Denver, 14-10, as predicted, and Wichita took Drake 21-0.

The Williamson System probably was the only one in the country to pick Texas Christian over Indiana. Some of the other top Williamson picks: Ole Miss 23, Vanderbilt 7; Texas Tech 41, Tulsa 20; Columbia 34, Yale 28; Santa Clara 27, Stanford 14.

Kansas State, after 28 consecutive losses, beat Arkansas State of Jonesboro, 37 to 6. The Williamson System picked Kansas.

The current Williamson ratings on the best 50 teams in the country are:

Seek Uniform Tests For Nation's Boxers

Philadelphia, Oct. 13 (AP)—The nation's boxing medical examiners will be asked to set up uniform physical tests if the suggestion of chairman Leon Rains of the Pennsylvania Athletic Association is adopted.

Rains has made the suggestion to Abe Greene, commissioner of the National Boxing Association.

The Pennsylvania commissioner pointed out yesterday that an important feature of bringing the medical men together would be a series of panel discussions on brain hemorrhages, which have caused one ring death in Pennsylvania this year and serious injury to fighters in other states.

1948 City Title Will Be at Stake

Maurice Davenport and John Van Gonsic, two of the city's finest amateur golfers, will play the first half of their 36-hole match for the 1948 city crown, Saturday at Wilkewick Golf Club at 1 p. m.

The second half is scheduled Sunday at 1 p. m. at Twaalfskill.

Davenport, who dethroned Billy Van Aken for the Wilkewick crown, his third, faces an opponent who recently defeated Lou Smith, 1 up, in a thrilling 19-hole encounter for the Twaalfskill title.

Van Gonsic succeeded Ed Remmert at Twaalfskill, the latter having been eliminated by Lou Smith. Van Gonsic reached the finals with another 19-hole victory, over Father Henry Herdogen of St. Paul's.

Head Van Aken

In the Wilkewick finals, Davenport, with a flawless game and deadly putting, defeated Van Aken 4 and 3. It was one of his finest exhibitions of the season.

The city contenders are no strangers to each other on the golf course, having played against each other many times in the past.

Van Gonsic drew Davenport as his opponent twice in the annual Wilkewick-Twaalfskill inter-club dual and emerged victorious both times. But in head-to-head play, these past performances don't mean too much.

Winner of the Van Gonsic-Davenport battle will be awarded the championship trophy at a dinner to be sponsored jointly by Twaalfskill and Wilkewick clubs.

Sarkisian Line Star

New York, Oct. 13 (AP)—Alex Sarkisian, captain and center of Northwestern's undefeated team, was named the collegiate football lineman of the week today in the Associated Press' first poll of the season.

Sarkisian, a 215-pound senior, played the full 60 minutes against Minnesota. His work in stopping up the middle of the Northwestern forward wall played a major role in N.W.'s 19-16 victory over the Gophers.

The Northwestern captain was one of 29 linemen—usually the forgotten players on Saturday—from all parts of the country who drew high praise for their efforts up front.

Chuck Bednarik, Pennsylvania's All-American center who has done everything but throw a forward pass this season; Dick Harris, of Texas; Dan Dworsky, of Michigan; John Perlik, of Cornell; Dick Woodard, of Iowa; and Bob Fuchs, of Missouri, all received compliments on their play. All are centers.

Two Standout Guards

Two tackles from the Southern Conference likewise received plaudits—Len Szafaryn, of North Carolina and Tom Salisbury of Clemson. Szafaryn recovered two fumbles, one setting up the eventual winning touchdown against Wake Forest. On five occasions he broke up wedge in front of ball carrier on kickoff returns. Salisbury blocked Sherry McWilliams' punt in first period of game against Mississippi State, scooped up ball and scored first touchdown. He then contributed a superb defensive game.

Al Hemstad, of the University of Washington, and Paul Burris, of Oklahoma, topped the guards. Hemstad, a 24-year-old married senior and veteran of 64 missions in the Army Air Corps during the war, made several spectacular tackles as the Huskies beat U.C.L.A. Burris' play helped the Sooners whip Texas.

Victorious Tribe Players Heading For More Dough

Cleveland, Oct. 13 (AP)—With the toughest baseball grind in history finally behind them, some of the world champion Cleveland Indians are going to relax a bit by playing baseball.

That went today for such worthies as Bob Lemon, Walt Judnick, Steve Gromek and, probably, Bob Kennedy. Pitcher Lemon and Outfielder Judnick, both Californians, have west coast barnstorming plans. Pitcher Gromek and Outfielder Kennedy figure on some exhibition games around Detroit.

Even Satchel Paige, who must have been throwing knucklers when Huns Wagner was a rookie, checked out shortly after yesterday's hysterical victory parade and headed east.

Paige Wants Work

His parting shot: "Gotta keep my arm loosened up, so I'll probably do some throwing during the barnstorming season."

Bob Feller is going to have one final fling. It will be in the annual homecoming game Saturday at his home town, Van Meter, Ia. Then: "Fishing, hunting, golf and flying—that about takes care of my winter plans."

Most of the others, however, have seen enough bats and mits for a while.

Larry Doby, the negro outfielder, figures on a nice rest back in Paterson, N. J., with some professional basketball possibly later on.

Army-Harvard Tie This Week's Top Drawer Pick by Hoople

By MAJOR AMOS B. HOOPLE (The Upset Man)

Egad! Where would you turn for upsets if not to Hoople, the old reliable. Har-umph!

That is what I am telling a couple of my zillion readers who are in a carping mood. These misled creatures aver that in my selections thus far I have picked more losers than a two-buck player. Drat such statisticians!

It is true that I got off to a slow start with my football forecasts this year. But you wouldn't want me to be a front runner, would you? Let me remind you of Whitelaw, who collared them in the stretch. They pay off after the ninth inning, don't they?—hak-kaff!

Just please keep in mind that it was Hoople who gave you Brown to defeat Princeton and Harvard to whip Columbia. How many other prognosticators dished out the straight dope on those two contests?

And this week I have more startling upsets for you—Harvard to tie the Army for one. Yes, and Northwestern will beat Michigan!

Follow the 100 per cent, sure-fire, dyed-in-the-wool Hoople forecast, and watch the batting average grow to an astronomical figure.

Here they are, my friends, for Oct. 16:

Army 13, Harvard 13
Holy Cross, Brown 12
Dartmouth 13, Colgate 7
Cornell 16, Syracuse 6
Wake Forest 20, Duquesne 7
Missouri 20, Navy 12
Penn State 10, W. Virginia 6
Penn 14, Columbia 7
Wisconsin 20, Yale 7
Minnesota 19, Illinois 18
Ohio State 20, Indiana 19
Purdue 26, Iowa 7
Northwestern 14, Michigan 12
Notre Dame 27, Nebraska 12
Alabama 13, Tennessee 7
L.S.U. 19, Georgia 14
Georgia Tech 20, Auburn 0
Kentucky 13, Vanderbilt 6
Mississippi 13, Tulane 7
S.M.U. 13, Texas A. & M. 7
California 20, Oregon State 13
Oregon 20, Southern Cal 13
Stanford 14, U.C.L.A. 7

Pep Easy Winner Over Chuck Burton

Jersey City, N. J., Oct. 13 (AP)—World featherweight champion Willie Pep, 132, of Hartford, Conn., won every one of eight rounds to defeat Chuck Burton, 127, Newark, in a non-title bout at Jersey City Garden last night.

There were no knockdowns in the match, but Pep sent Burton reeling in the fifth and sixth rounds with left hooks to the head.

Indians Play Two

Seeking revenge for a 13 to 0 setback suffered Sunday afternoon at Hudson, the Poughkeepsie Indians will play host to the Merchants Thursday night, 8:30 p. m., under the powerful arc lights at Riverview field.

The Tribe dropped the decision to the Hudson entry although outplaying the team in all departments. Poughkeepsie rang up 209 yards to 128 for the winners but came out on the short end of the score.

Hudson rushed to a quick score in the first period and got another in the third after a blocked punt on the 10-yard line.

Aside from these two strikes, the Redskins held the upper hand. The team banged on the door but was refused admission.

At Newburgh Sunday

On Sunday afternoon the Indians will invade Newburgh for a big Hudson Valley Football League clash.

The winner of Thursday's game between Hudson and Poughkeepsie will take over undisputed possession of first place in the Eastern Football League. Troy, Hudson and the Indians are tied at present with 2-1 records.

All five of the leading money-winning horses—Slymie, Armed, Assault, Citation and Whiraway—have raced at Hialeah.

Mrs. Reid Silent On Father's Will

New York, Oct. 13 (AP)—Mrs. Denise Reid was silent today regarding her father's will which cuts her off from a large share of his $2,500,000 estate unless she divorces her husband, Robert.

She referred all inquiries to her attorney, Sampson Selig, who said it was "just one of those personal dislikes."

The late Daniel K. Weiskopf, who made the provision in his will, "Just didn't like Mr. Reid," Selig added.

The will of Weiskopf, who died last March 22 at the age of 74, provided that his daughter be cut off with only $2,500 a year unless she divorced her husband. If she does, she would receive about $30,000 a year from a trust fund.

Weiskopf was a distillery executive. The will was probated in Miami, Fla. Executors of the estate have asked the Dade county Circuit Court there whether the will "contravenes public policy" by inducing the daughter to divorce the man she loves. No date for hearing has been set.

The Reids were married July 18, 1944, while Reid, then an army air force captain, was home on leave from the Aleutians. Weiskopf attended the ceremony in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

Weiskopf moved from New York to Miami Beach in 1936 after retiring from active participation in the National Distillers Products Corp. of New York, of which he was executive vice president.

Soviet Delegate Jakob A. Malik, in an immediate reply to Shawcross accused him of obtaining his arguments "from the annals of Trotsky, Hitler, Goering and Goebbels."

He said the Shawcross' speech was one-third intervention in Soviet domestic affairs, one-third "a beating of drums" and the remainder a repetition of "old and familiar arguments."

After Malik had spoken, the committee approved 31 to five, with 11 abstentions, a Ukrainian resolution to close general debate on arms reduction.

U. S. Delegate Warren Austin opposed what he called an "effort to impose a gag rule" and voted against it, Russia abstained.

Theatrical Union Favors Firemen

Frank Hopper, president of Local 637 of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees and Motion Picture Machine Operators of the United States and Canada, has sent the following resolution to the Kingston Fire Department in support of Proposition "A" favoring an increased wage for members of the department:

WHEREAS, economic conditions in our County affecting all industries are changing the entire system of wages; and

WHEREAS, it is becoming more and more evident that salaries of the Firemen of the City of Kingston are not sufficient to maintain a fair standard of living for themselves and families; and

WHEREAS, we as workers can aid the firemen in their efforts to earn a living wage by urging all members of our union, their families and friends to vote "YES" on "PROPOSITION A" in the November election.

In Colors or White It keeps Your Home Bright!
"Dutch Boy" Blended Paint

The big news is "Dutch Boy" Blended Paint. Why blended paint? Because different types of service require different kinds of paint. For lasting beauty white house paint can't be made like trim colors, nor tints like porch and deck paint. So "Dutch Boy" paint chemists blend each color to do its own special job specially well. If you've been waiting for good paint... it's here... waiting for you!
